

No Mass GM Stock Sale by Du Pont, U. S. Judge Decides

Firm May Not Vote or Act to Influence Motors Corporation

Chicago — (AP) — A federal court order severing corporate ties between Du Pont and General Motors without forcing a mass stock sale calmed fears in the financial world today. Du Pont's president said he was gratified by the ruling which generally followed a proposal made by Du Pont attorneys.

The government, which had asked sale and distribution of Du Pont's 63 million shares of GM stock, has not said whether it will appeal the decision. Its attorneys said they are studying the long decree.

First reaction in financial circles was unanimous that the ruling was favorable to both sides.

Distribution Needless
U. S. Dist. Judge Walter J. La Buy, late yesterday after domestic stock exchanges closed for the weekend, held that the distribution was not necessary.

Government attorneys had asked distribution of the GM shares, worth some $3½ billion, as a means of ending a Clayton anti-trust law violation. The supreme court held such a violation resulted from Du Pont's possession of the shares, comprising 23 percent of the outstanding GM stock.

Judge La Buy's solution to the problem was a ban on voting rights for Du Pont on its GM stock, and other bars to influence by Du Pont interests upon GM management affairs. The order, latest development in the government's 10-year effort to sever the two industrial giants, besides shifting Du Pont's voting rights in its GM stock to individual Du Pont stockholders:

1. Bars Du Pont—E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Company, the big chemical firm — and two Du Pont family holding firms, the Christiana Securities company and the Delaware Realty and Investment corporation — from acquiring and additional stock interest or influence in GM;

2. Prohibits the Christiana and Delaware firms from voting GM stock and wipes out any voting rights of 535,500 GM shares held by Christiana;

3. Bars Du Pont, Christiana and Delaware officers and directors from voting any GM stock;

4. Forbids officers and directors of Du Pont, Christiana and Delaware from serving as GM officers or directors, and bars GM from employing any employees of the three Du Pont companies;

5. Bars any preferential trade arrangements or understandings between Du Pont and GM as long as Du Pont owns GM stock, and cancels existing supplier contracts between Du Pont and GM for three years after which one-year supplier contracts may be negotiated.

Judge La Buy's order retained Chicago district court jurisdiction for enforcement of the order and reserved the right to review and amend the court's terms if future justification should arise.

No Early End Apparent for Ports Walkout

Employers, Union Not Expected to Meet Until Oct. 15

New York — (AP) — An early settlement of the longshoremen's strike, that has shut down ports along the Atlantic and gulf coasts, appeared unlikely today.

The New York Shipping association says it will not meet with the International Longshoremen's association until Oct. 15. The union says its workers will not return to the docks until it has a new contract.

Shippers say the strike is costing them $20 million a day.

Robert H. Moore, deputy director of the federal mediation and conciliation service, plans to meet Monday separately with both sides but he has indicated that the immediate possibility of his persuading them to meet jointly is unlikely.

Many Ships Tied Up
The strike of about 85,000 longshoremen from Searsport, Maine, to Brownsville, Texas, has tied up cargo operations on about 20 freighters. The strike developed early Thursday in southern ports and quickly spread north.

The New York Shipping association, which represents 170 steamship lines and contracting stevedores in the Port of New York, negotiates master contracts for all employers from Maine to Virginia. The association and union leaders had agreed to a 15-day extension of the contract that expired Sept. 30 and also had agreed that any new benefits would be retroactive to Oct. 1.

U. S. Must Meet Alien Challenge, Nixon Declares

Concord, N. H. — (AP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon said today the United States must use all its resources and people as fully as possible "if we are to meet the competition of other nations and other political systems."

Nixon cited specifically the challenge which he said Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev "so bluntly laid before the American people on his visit here."

Kansasville Bong Base Cancelled by Air Force

This Was a Common Sight in Tulsa and in other places in Oklahoma Friday as numerous flash floods from rain-fed creeks forced families out of their homes. Here dwellers of a trailer court flee the rising waters. The man in the background ran a ferry boat service, hauling occupants and their belongings to higher ground. More rain was forecast for the area today.

Union Studies Proposal

Industry Suggests Pay Package Deal

BY JOHN MOODY

Pittsburgh — (AP) — Steel negotiators, meeting in an unusual Saturday session, today explored an industry suggestion that an hourly package be given to striking Steelworkers in exchange for tighter management control in the mills.

The meeting got off to a late start when the United Steel workers negotiating team, headed by President David J. McDonald, showed up 20 minutes after the scheduled 10 a.m. starting time.

Reliable sources in the industry say McDonald has been told he can have an annual 8-cent hourly pay package increase in a contract which contains language permitting management more control over working schedules, seniority arrangements and other working conditions.

Split Package
The reported 8-cent package apparently would be split up in welfare and pension benefits the first year of a 2-year agreement and then be applied to a pay increase in the second year.

The company suggestion, apparently not submitted yet as a formal proposal, came during a new round of negotiations that opened in Pittsburgh Thursday.

The Saturday session would make it appear that McDonald had not rejected the suggestion, and certainly had not accepted it. McDonald previously had denounced company demands for working rule changes as a union-busting move.

The industry has let McDonald know—either by formal proposal or indirect hinting—that it will boost hourly wages if management can have a tighter reign on workers' habits in the mills.

The industry first broached the working practices proposal before the Steelworkers struck on July 15. At that time the industry offered only to share industry savings with the workers. It set no price.

Juvenile Gang Assaults Youth

New York — (AP) — Juvenile violence broke out again last night when a gang of young hoodlums savagely beat and kicked a 17-year-old youth in Brooklyn.

Danny Goldstein, a high school junior, was taken to Kings County hospital with cuts and bruises of the face, a deep gash over his eye and his nose smashed by his assailants who, police said, were a gang of Negro boys and girls.

Danny and some friends — boys and girls — were strolling the streets in the Brownsville section. Suddenly the gang of Negro boys and girls pounced on the group. All but Danny fled.

Danny was knocked to the ground, punched and kicked. He was left bleeding and stunned. Hospital authorities said plastic surgery might be necessary to restore Danny's battered nose.

Police began an immediate search for the gang. No arrests were made immediately.

Hurricane Moving Out Over Atlantic

Washington — (AP) — Hurricane Hannah was reported 180 miles north of Bermuda today moving out across the Atlantic ocean, away from land.

All shipping in the path of the big storm was warned to exercise extreme caution.

The U. S. weather bureau said Hannah is sending gale force winds about 200 miles in all directions. Highest winds are estimated at 125 m. p. h. near the center.

Flee Floods In Oklahoma

Rescue Workers With Boats Alert For Further Calls

Oklahoma City — (AP) — Flood waters from four days of steady autumn rain have forced thousands of Oklahomans from their homes into emergency shelters.

Rescue workers with boats and liferafts remained on the alert today in three Oklahoma cities for possible further evacuations.

Hundreds of families have already moved from their homes in Stillwater, Guthrie, Skiatook. Early estimates on property damage ran into the hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Early today skies over central and northern Oklahoma were ash gray and the weather bureau offered no hope of respite from the rains.

Waters Rising
At Tulsa, Oklahoma's second most populous city, the Arkansas river was expected to reach a foot and a half over flood stage by noon today.

"It just looks bleak and bad," said Policeman Pete Eaton at Skiatook, just north of Tulsa, "and if this rain keeps up all night, God knows what's going to happen."

Rain has swept the Sooner State since Wednesday.

Stillwater, a college town of 25,000 population, is one of the hardest hit. An estimated 1,000 persons spent last night away from flooded homes.

Construction Contracts For $80 Million Project End; $15 Million Expended

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau

Washington — Construction of the previously authorized $80 million Richard Bong air force base at Kansasville, Wis., was cancelled by the air force Friday after $15 million was spent.

The air force cancelled construction contracts and will dispose of supplies and equipment, it said. Other bases, which had been handling B47 bombers will take over the B58 bomber mission originally programmed for Bong.

Last year, Rep. Melvin R. Laird, Marshfield, questioned the wisdom of the base being located at Kansasville because he considered it dangerous to commercial airline travel. It was in direct route of airlines going from Madison and other Wisconsin points to Milwaukee or Chicago.

Demands Investigation
The cancellation immediately brought a demand by Rep. Gerald Flynn (D-Wis) for a congressional investigation of the action. The base is in his district.

"This year, Richard Bong was a subject of debate on the house floor between two Wisconsin Democrats—Rep. Henry S. Reuss, Milwaukee, and Rep. Flynn, Racine. Reuss thought too much money was being requested for certain recreational facilities at the base. Flynn took the opposing view. Recreation appropriations were turned down.

Even at that, more than $80 million has been funded. The air force said it would have to spend "additional funds" over the $15 million already spent, to terminate construction contracts already let.

If equipment and supplies on the base are disposed of via sale of surplus property, the government will realize

Coed Learns She's Heiress of $800,000 From Uncle's Estate

New York — (AP) — When coed Miriam Elter phoned her father early this week, he told her: "I have some news for you. Your uncle left you something in his will."

When Miriam, 20, arrived at her Brooklyn home yesterday from a school in Connecticut, she found out the something was $800,000.

Her uncle was Samuel Glazer, her mother's brother. Miriam was born in South Africa. Her father, Samuel, a restaurant owner, came to this country in 1942 and then sent for Miriam and her mother. Their ship was sunk in the Atlantic by a German U-boat. They drifted in a lifeboat for 13 days. Twenty-nine of the 40 persons in the boat, including Miriam's mother, Sara, died.

Hearings on TV Quiz Shows

Harris Expects to Get Evidence on Chicanery, Deceit

Washington — (AP) — A congressional investigation of TV quiz shows next week will turn up chicanery and deceit "even beyond what we had originally suspected," Rep. Oren Harris (D-Ark) predicts.

Harris is chairman of the house subcommittee on legislative oversight. It will hold four days of hearings starting next Tuesday on alleged rigging of TV quiz shows.

Harris said last night, "The subcommittee is interested solely in where commercial deceit has been practiced on a national scale by means of deliberate and willful holding out to the public as honest contests, performances which were rigged in advance."

Tell of Coaching
The subcommittee has subpoenaed winners in some of the quiz shows who have told previously of contestants being coached and getting answers in advance. Most of the quiz shows have long since disappeared from the TV screen.

Harris added, "The subcommittee expects to show that sponsors, advertising agencies, owners, packagers, producers, networks and station licensees, as well as many contestants, all benefited from the extraordinary appeal of the quiz show to the public."

"It is not the subcommittee's function to prejudge whether existing law has been violated. But if no existing law has been violated, then we believe it is our duty to recommend to the congress legislation aimed at preventing any repetition of such deception."

Harris said the subcommittee would not indulge in exposure for exposure's sake. "No useful purpose would be served by parading a group of embarrassed individuals before the subcommittee simply to satisfy curiosity," he said.

Share Lord's Supper

World-Wide Communion Sunday To be Observed by Protestants

BY TOM HENSHAW
AP Religion Writer

New York — The sun rising over the Fiji Islands in the Pacific tomorrow touches off what is coming to be an important Sunday on the Protestant calendar.

It's world-wide communion Sunday, the day when churches around the world make an extra special effort to get as many people as possible to share in the Lord's supper as a demonstration of Christian unity.

"People of all races and nations will come together in small rural churches, and in great cathedrals, on army and navy bases and on ships at sea to take part in one of the world's most impressive demonstrations of oneness," says the Rev. Dr. H. H. McConnell.

The Rev. Dr. McConnell is acting executive director of the National Council of Churches' Department of Evangelism, which has sponsored world-wide communion Sunday since 1950.

Idea Spreads

Actually, the observance started in 1936 with a small group of Presbyterian ministers. In no time at all, Presbyterian missionaries carried the idea overseas. Other denominations picked it up. In 1940, the old Federal Council of Churches took over sponsorship.

Although world-wide communion lasts only one day, the first Sunday in October, its success is determined the previous week when "visitors" canvas the parish seeking pledges to come to church. Visitors are picked from the congregation on the last Sunday in September.

Since world-wide communion Sunday has come under the wing of the NCC's Department of Evangelism, preparations for its observance have been conducted with typical council efficiency. There is even a printed guide for the instruction of ministers and visitors.

In it, ministers are reminded that a large turnout may make two morning communion services necessary and that plans should be made for taking the communion services to shut-ins who cannot attend church.

And visitors are reminded that "Visits where no difficulty is encountered should not exceed 15 minutes. This is not a social call. This is a visit with a definite objective."

The objective: Fulfillment of the demand made by Jesus Christ at the Last Supper when He said: "Do This in Remembrance of Me."

Neck Injury Suffered by Crash Victim

Waukegan Woman Not Hospitalized; Car Hits Trailer

Waukegan — Millicent Snook, 40, Waukegan, Ill., complained of a sore neck, but was not hospitalized after a 2-car accident about 9:55 p. m. Thursday on Highway 54, about 500 feet north of the intersection of Highways 22 and 54.

She was a passenger in a car driven by Robert L. Snook, 40, Waukegan. The Snook vehicle going north had stopped in traffic while tame ducks waddled across the highway.

A car driven by William A. Bush, 17, route 1, Clintonville, collided with the rear of a 2-wheel trailer hitched to the halted Snook car.

Snook's trailer, and the front end of the Bush vehicle were damaged, according to county police who investigated.

Modern Fantasy Chosen for Test By Wittenberg

Wittenberg — "Day In, Day Out" by Eric Salmon has been chosen as the 1-act play which Wittenberg High school will present at the league 1-act play contest at Waupaca Oct. 21.

The play, a fantasia on modern themes, is a satire on the monotony and drabness of people's lives and is very modernistic in the approach and developments.

Story Hour for Children to be Held at Library

Coffee Session Set For Mothers While Children are Busy

Kaukauna — The second annual pre-school children's story hour will get underway at the Kaukauna library Oct. 15 under the direction of Mrs. Nancy Smith, children's librarian.

Plans call for the story hour to get underway at 2 p. m. and will be exclusively for children 4 or 5 years old. Limited space forces the librarian to limit the number participating.

Mothers will bring their children to the story hour and be permitted to browse around the library or leave and return within an hour to pick up their children. A coffee hour for informal discussions with Roderick MacDonald, librarian, will be held at the same time to help mothers pass the hour.

Mrs. Smith said reservations for participation can be made by calling her or stopping at the library and enrollment will be on a first come basis. She urged mothers to try making regular attendance as this will prove most beneficial to youngsters.

Women's Session

No definite program has been set up for the women's coffee hour with the librarian. The first few sessions will be devoted to becoming acquainted and talking on subjects of general interest.

Later the women and librarian will formulate discussion topics in advance to permit preparation and planning. Women will be encouraged to use library facilities for discussion material.

Legion Women Name Delegates To Conference

Little Chute — The executive committee of the American Legion auxiliary named delegates to attend the Educational conferences at Madison Tuesday.

Delegates include Mrs. Paul Dercks, Mrs. LaVerne DeBruin, Mrs. Casey Van Boxtel, Mrs. Paul Vanden Heuvel, Mrs. Richard Kilsdonk, Mrs. William Winius, Miss Betty Hammen and Mrs. Ronald Geiger.

Plans were discussed for the annual Christmas party and a benefit card party, proceeds of which will go to the mentally retarded children's fund. Women are to bring aprons for the Christmas gift shop at veteran's hospitals to the Thursday meeting.

Women unable to attend but wishing to donate items can call Mrs. Dercks, president, who will pick up the aprons. Cash donations are accepted as money will be used for postage when mailing the gift items. All items are given to veterans without charge and the veterans send them to their families.

Two Motorists Fined in Kimberly Justice Court

Kimberly — Henry A. Peerboom, 20, 421 S. Main avenue, Kimberly, pleaded guilty of reckless driving when arraigned before Albert J. Van Alphen, justice of the peace, Thursday night and was fined $25.

Carl A. Hoppe, 61, 609 S. Teulah street, Appleton, pleaded guilty of following an emergency vehicle too closely and was fined $10.

Kimberly High Students Name Representatives to Council

Kimberly — Student council members have been elected at Kimberly High school, and have started planning for the annual Homecoming activities and other school functions for the coming term.

Officers named include Dennis Dresang, president; Dave Freund, vice president; Pat Verhoven, secretary, and Dick Bonzelet, treasurer.

A representative and alternate were elected from each home room with alternates sitting in when regulars are unable to attend meetings. Senior members are Dick Bonzelet, Martin Vanden Broek, Kathy Nelessen and Marjorie Menting. Senior alternates are Dave Freund,

The POWER of FAITH

As the Sun Went down on the Jungle Warfare Training Center of Fort Sherman, Canal Zone, yesterday travel-weary Rabbi Nathan Witkin reverently unrolled the sacred Torah to begin services for Rosh Hashanah, the Jewish New Year.

Rabbi Witkin, the representative of the National Jewish Welfare Board in the Canal Zone, had just returned from his annual 10,000-mile flight around the Caribbean arranging for services in Jamaica, Trinidad, Virgin Islands, Cuba and South America.

It was Rabbi Witkin's deep faith in God, in himself and in his mission that enabled him to carry on his work after his wife, Esther, was killed 17 years ago when a military plane crashed into their home.

"Religious faith has for me a two-fold meaning," says Rabbi Witkin. "The acceptance of the precepts of Judaism as taught in our Torah and the observance of these precepts in our dealings with our fellow man. I believe further that man is blessed by the Almighty if he is given the opportunity during his lifetime to be of service to his fellow man."

Chilton Plans For Visit of Bloodmobile

Masonic Temple Site of Center Oct. 26 Afternoon

Chilton — The Red Cross bloodmobile will visit Chilton Oct. 26 at the first floor of Masonic temple from noon to 6 p. m.

County blood chairmen, Clarence Schneider and Calvin Schmah, and Mrs. William Stauss, Calumet county Red Cross chairman, have started planning for the third visit of the bloodmobile this year.

Donors will be solicited from the city of Chilton, towns of Chilton and Stockbridge, and a portion of Charlestown and Rantoul.

Residents of the county have received 401 pints of blood in the last year. Of this, 229 pints were administered at Calumet Memorial hospital. Some patients have received as many as 16 pints of blood during this period.

No charge is made for the blood received by county residents since Calumet Red Cross chapter joined the regional Red Cross blood center. Blood derivatives are also provided free of charge. There are service charges made by the hospitals.

Persons wishing to work for that service or donate blood have been asked to contact Mrs. Stauss.

Punchboard Mailed to Manawa Boy

Manawa — An illegal punchboard mailed from New York arrived in the mail addressed to a Manawa youngster, Ald. Carl Roenz told city councilmen Thursday.

Roenz said the gaming device was mailed directly to one of his children. The child is directed to sell punches to classmates. When all punches are sold, the secret number is opened and one of the punch buyers wins a doll. The punch seller also wins a doll.

Roenz said he contacted Postmaster Len Goetz who asks any such devices received in the mail should be brought to the post office. They will be investigated by the postal department.

Punchboards and gaming devices are illegal in Wisconsin.

Motorist Pays Fine of $75 For Negligence

Donald Borsche Fled Police After High Speed Chase

An Appleton motorist who fled pursuing lawmen on foot after a high speed chase on Highway 96 was fined $75 in municipal court Friday after he pleaded guilty of negligence in operation of his car.

Donald Borsche, 23, 912 E. Frances street, abandoned his car, officers said, in a private driveway and fled across two open fields after police had chased him at high rates of speed on Highway 96.

Borsche first told police his car had been stolen, but later admitted he feared arrest.

Involved in Accident

Mrs. Beulah V. Gordon, 916 Ridge Lane, paid $40 after pleading guilty of operating her auto on the wrong side of the road. She was involved in an accident Sept. 30 on S. Oneida street at Ramlen court. She will lose six points against her driving record—three for the offense and three for the accident.

Gilbert J. Vosters, 37, route 1, Kaukauna, paid $25 for failure to yield the right-of-way an dbeing involved in an accident. He, too, will lose six points.

William M. Cain, 29, route 1, Kaukauna, forfeited bond of $13.95 for failure to stop at a stop sign. He'll be charged three points.

Losing three points each for speeding were Sharon M. Pomeroy, of 1706 Florence street, Kaukauna, $10; and Clifford S. Nushart, 20, of 106 E. 10th street, Kaukauna, $15.

Lose Six Points

Richard O. Scharmin, 17, of 921 W. Bell avenue, will lose six points for speeding. His license was revoked for three months.

Library to Ask $107,497 From City Tax Levy

Board Approves $107,497 Budget; Less Than in '59

A 1960 library budget of $120,297 or $1,488 less than last year, has been approved by the library board. Of this, $107,497 will be sought from the city property tax levy. The tax request for 1960 will be presented to the common council in mid-October.

Last year the library received $90,265 from the levy. A library balance of $11,200 from the previous year was applied to the 1959 budget. An additional $12,800 was obtained from other sources, such as the county board and over-due book fines. Another 12,800 is anticipated from those sources in 1960.

An insurance premium of $1,860 was paid out of last year's budget. The premium is paid every three years, thus is not budgeted for 1960.

Last year $2,220 was allotted for repairs, compared to $800 in the 1960 budget. Major repair work was done on the ventilation system last year. Salaries will total $77,484 this year, compared to $72,600 for 1959. The book fund this year is $22,000, compared to $21,000 last year.

Fallout Shelters For State Pushed

organization last year made a study of the average Milwaukee home and of fallout shelter possibilities in existing homes. Gen. John Carleton, Milwaukee CD directors, and Robert E. Wiegand, Milwaukee CD engineer, reported.

The study indicated that with little work, safety of the average home could be increased 3-fold, Wiegand said.

Protection Simple

Protection, Wiegand explained, consists of bricking up basement windows, piling earth against exposed basement walls and picking a corner of the basement for a shelter area. The house studied, a 14-story clapboard home with basement, is common throughout the state, he added.

However, with a ranch home built on a slab, there is no way to escape radioactivity other than digging a hole or going to a mass shelter, he declared.

Most 6-people family shelters can be installed for about $50 per person. The shelter has concrete block walls and roof, affording sufficient protection to live through fallout danger following a nuclear explosion, Wiegand indicated.

Cost Factor Considered

New York's committee has not progressed enough to nail down costs, but they will be a factor in recommending new laws, McHugh said.

The entire matter is a question of education, McHugh maintained. "People have a curious repugnance to spend money to save themselves. In spite of this, they do it every day, through building codes, minimum standards and other government regulations," he commented.

Both the Milwaukee and New York men said the modern school is about the worst shelter possible. Large glass areas, 1-story construction and spread-out facilities make worthless shelters.

Laws Antiquated

In Wisconsin, state law prohibits teaching classes in rooms more than two feet below ground level. This 56-year-old law prevents building schools with possible shelter advantages, Gen. Carleton pointed out.

The best new home structure for protection has the first floor concrete, at grade level with about 3-foot brick siding, basement with emergency exits.

Portage County Man Found Dead in Woods

Anthony Kwasniak, 71, Buena Vista, Portage county, was found dead in a woods near his home Thursday by friends. He was last seen alive Monday. He was born Sept. 1, 1888, in Poland. Death was believed caused by a heart ailment.

Funeral services will be at 2 p. m. Monday at Juenger Funeral home, Amherst, with the Rev. Alfred Hemmerbach, St. Patrick Catholic church, town of Lanark, Portage county, officiating. Burial will be in the parish cemetery. Friends may call after 2-p. m. Sunday at Juenger Funeral home.

Forfeits Bond

John F. Gawrisch, 65, Milwaukee, has forfeited bond of $18.95 in municipal court on a charge of illegal passing. He was arrested June 15 on Highway 45 three miles east of Hortonville and had pleaded innocent at his arraignment. He will lose three points against his driving record.

It's Wet Yet But Outlook Is Brighter

Another sports weekend looks wet, but it may not be too bad.

The weatherman forecasts occasional rain east and south today, with temperatures turning cooler. Sunday may be cloudy but with less rain. It was beginning to clear in Central Wisconsin at 11 a. m. today.

Friday night football contests were played on fields churned to a muddy slick as a steady drizzle fell.

Violent storms are rocking areas in the west and south. The weatherman says we're in our own trough of air which keeps the other weather away.

East coast storms have subsided, but nature is unleashing her fury by drenching and wind-lashing portions of Oklahoma, Texas and Missouri.

Authorities counted at least 10 persons dead and seven injured in these areas and snow-clogged Colorado.

Name Three New Trustees At Institute

Stanton Mead, Karl Stansbury Board Members

Three trustees were elected to the Institute of Paper Chemistry board of trustees at the 30th annual meeting.

They are William H. Chisholm, president of the Oxford Paper company, New York City.

Mead Stansbury

ty, and Stanton W. Mead, president of Consolidated Water Power and Paper company, Wisconsin Rapids, both elected for five years, and Ward D. Harrison, president of Allied Paper corporation, elected to a 3-year term as alumni trustee.

Karl E. Stansbury, former chairman of the board of Thimamy Pulp and Paper company, Kaukauna, who has served on the Institute board since 1946 as a nominee of Lawrence college, has been reelected.

Chisholm and Mead replace Donald S. Leslie, president of Hammermill Paper company, and George Olmstead, Jr., president of S. E. Warren company, who were ineligible to succeed themselves. Leslie had been a member since 1951, Olmstead since 1950. Harrison, who received a PhD degree from the Institute in 1936, replaces Harold Bialowsky, whose term expired.

Dr. Edward F. Thode, a member of the chemical engineering group of the Institute, was appointed chief of the pulping and papermaking section.

Before joining the staff, he was a research chemical engineer and an associate professor of chemical engineering at the University of Maine. He now is coordinator for the operation of the recently installed IBM computer.

Dr. Thode has three degrees from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He replaces Donald J. MacLaurin, who resigned from the Institute to engage in industrial consulting.

Home's Need of Matron Forced Resignation

Fredrick Asked To Quit to Get Needed Quarters

The resignation of Edward Fredrick, superintendent of the Golden Age home at New London, was forced by the need to engage a matron at the Outagamie county home.

Dr. J. B. MacLaren, president of the home's board of trustees, said today the request for Fredrick's resignation reflected in no way on the superintendent's operation of the home nor on himself.

Most of the home residents are women, Dr. MacLaren explained, and a matron is needed for 24-hour duty.

Need Quarters

Fredrick, a 54-year-old bachelor, occupies the superintendent's home. Other quarters would be needed for any matron engaged, and the board felt such an arrangement would not be suitable.

The board's request was concurred in by the executive committee of the county board. It had asked Fredrick to step down by Jan. 1. However, Fredrick said he would vacate his post by Nov. 1.

The trustees are compiling a standard of qualifications for a matron before seeking a replacement for Fredrick.

Drunk, Frightened

Student Admits Story Of Beating Was Hoax

A 19-year-old Marinette youth admitted to Outagamie county authorities today that his story of being slugged and robbed by three persons on Highway 76 near Appleton was a hoax.

Richard Johnson, a student at Wisconsin State college at Oshkosh, told Oshkosh police that he was "drunk, frightened and wanted a ride home."

Zuelzke said the youth admitted drinking in Oshkosh Tuesday and obtaining a ride as far as Highway 45 and 76, where he started hitchhiking home. He said he fell down several times. He said he had fallen down in Oshkosh, bloodying his nose. A hotel manager in Oshkosh had "hollered at me for my condition and I became frightened," he said.

Johnson said he became ill after he got out of the car and decided to lay down on the shoulder of the road "because I thought someone would give me a ride."

He said he told the story of being beaten and robbed because he didn't know what else to do.

The youth, Zuelzke said, had about a week ago told Edward C. Ginnow, 1400 N. Kenilworth avenue, who had picked him up a Highway 41 and 141 in Oconto county, that he had been beaten by four men.

Road-E-O Cancelled

Menasha—The second annual Kiwanis club bicycle Road-e-o, schedule for this afternoon, has been cancelled indefinitely. It had been rescheduled from last Saturday because of bad weather.

Public Business Should be Public

Gov. Nelson's notice to the University of Wisconsin Board of Regents that meetings of the board and its committees must be open to the public under a new law passed by the 1959 legislature is an important statement for it also should serve as a warning to all governmental boards and commissions as well as to the regents. The law applies to county, city and town boards and commissions as well as to state bodies.

With the help of an opinion by Atty. Gen. Reynolds, the governor was able to point out to the regents that all meetings of the board and of its committees must be open unless they fall within the exemptions provided by the law. It is the intention of the law that the people of Wisconsin shall have the "fullest and most complete information regarding the affairs of government that is compatible with the conduct of governmental affairs and the transaction of governmental business." To insure this goal the law provides that "all meetings of all state and local governing and administrative bodies, boards, commissions, committees and agencies including municipal and quasi-municipal corporations," shall be open to the public unless they are exempt under the law.

Meetings exempt are those called to discuss "personnel problems, land purchases and similar confidential matters." The obvious interpretation of the law is that closed meetings may be held only when the business to be discussed can not be handled at an open session or if its discussion at an open session would be damaging to the government. Since that was the intention of the legislature, closed meetings should become a rarity in Wisconsin affairs.

It is to be hoped that not only the board of regents but all state boards and commissions and their committees as well as the boards, committees and commissions of local governments will be guided by the governor's advice to the regents.

Why We Must Negotiate With Reds

Although the American people treated Premier Khrushchev politely, if a bit coldly, there still are a great many people in this country who feel that we are not only wasting time in negotiating with Russia but we also are neglecting our opportunities if not our duty to constantly tell the reds what we think about them. Obviously there is not a great deal to be gained by telling the reds off as we have often done in the past. It is a little difficult for many people to understand why we negotiate with the reds at all.

Paul L. McKay, president of Millikin University at Decatur, Ill., recently pointed out some very good reasons why we should keep talking. McKay was speaking to the Chicago Rotary club when he urged that the United States take a positive stand in its cold war with Russia. McKay thinks that communism has taken on the marks of a religion and its true threat is not an economic or a military one but one for "the souls of men." He said the communists' religion was a material one which bound 900,000,000 persons to the chains of slavery.

But, he pointed out, we are here dealing with ideas and "you have never stopped an idea with a bullet." "Time is on the side of freedom. Time is rough on dictators," McKay declared. He went on to say that the communist idea is that capitalism will decay and be displaced by communism. They will let time operate thinking we will be buried. In the meantime, if we are right about capitalism, it will continue to exist and to grow stronger and in the meantime McKay says, "Future generations of Russia are not likely to follow the communist doctrine as slavishly as their fathers."

Thus it must be obvious that there is a good reason for us to continue to negotiate with Khrushchev. We have everything to gain by avoiding hostilities. There is nothing to be gained by an interruption of the talks which have staved off war and now appear to have eased tensions. We are gaining time and only a few years more of this precious commodity might see a complete change in the strength of communists in Russia and throughout Asia.

The Viet Nam Exposure

A series of articles appearing in Scripps-Howard newspapers in July and August charged gross mismanagement of foreign aid funds allocated to Viet Nam. Gen. John O'Daniel, chairman of American Friends of Viet Nam, has taken violent exception to the articles. His facts appear to be far better founded than those of the Scripps-Howard reporter who spent only 14 days digging up his material although he speaks neither French nor Vietnamese.

Gen. O'Daniel, chief of U. S. Military Advisory Assistance Group to Viet Nam from 1954 to 1955 and actively working with his present organization since that time, has exploded several of the mismanagement and waste charges as apparently little more than "sidewalk gossip." In several instances he has shown the charges to be patently untrue, taken out of context or based on half-truths and what appears to be an abysmal lack of knowledge of the foreign aid program.

But even if all the charges were true, there are some odd aspects to this case. The waste would total about 1/2 of 1 per cent of the total Viet Nam aid program, hardly an unexpected sign of the inefficiency that must accompany our democratic processes. The charges came out at the time of the build-up of the red drive on Laos, Viet Nam's close neighbor. It was timed just before congressional foreign aid appropriation meetings, a plan which may be fine for lobbying purposes, but hardly indicates objectivity.

Viet Nam has been one of the former colonial countries which has put up the most telling battle against communist infiltration. While the "liberals" were applauding supposedly democratic advances in Indonesia a few years ago, they castigated the new rule in Viet Nam because it fought against bandit seats and reds alike. When aid to "neutral" nations was upheld, that to those like Viet Nam actively opposing communist control was sniffed about. Gen. O'Daniel's charges that such articles that ran in the Scripps-Howard papers play into the communist propaganda hands may be irrelevant. But why were these charges drummed up against Viet Nam? Why not against the foreign aid program in India or Yugoslavia or Egypt?

Gen. O'Daniel is joined by young Dr. Thomas Dooley of Laos in the opinion that Viet Nam, Cambodia and Laos probably could not have survived as free nations without American economic aid. The other advances he outlines, such as the resettlement of 900,000 refugees from the north, putting into production tillable land, and the efforts to begin industry are obviously important for the future economy of the country. In Rep. Clement Zablocki's words "testimony . . . from reliable observers . . . indicates strongly that the aid program in Viet Nam has been constructive, successful and responsibly administered."

It is rather apparent that the information gained for the Scripps-Howard papers was not reliable. It would seem that there is enough of a problem in our foreign aid program and relations with other countries without drumming up unsubstantiated charges for whatever purpose the newspaper chain had in mind.

What Others are Saying

Abraham Flexner Did Much for Medicine

From The Chicago Tribune

One of the truly great men of our era — Abraham Flexner — died at the age of 92. To him more than to any other man in his lifetime we owe the great advances that have been made in medical education.

Dr. Flexner's famous report on medical schools was published in 1910. He wasn't by any means the first American to recognize that the training of doctors — or rather the lack of it — in many of the schools in this country was a major scandal. In 1901, seven years before Dr. Flexner undertook his study, the American Medical Association had taken up the question and in 1905 its newly organized council on medical education had classified 82 of the 160 medical schools in the country as class A and 78 others as inferior.

The Flexner report reached much the same conclusion but its contribution lay more particularly in the details that it provided, based upon personal visits to the

Commission Balks At Name Changing

Ocala, Fla. — Fifteen homeowners led by H. G. Hunt got the county commissioners to change their street's name from Ellen Road to Ellen Drive. "Drive" has more class, they said.

A few days later the same group, with a new leader, convinced the commission to change the name back to Ellen Road.

Before long the 15, again led by Hunt, asked the commission to again make the name Ellen Drive.

The commissioners made it Cordrey Avenue.

Nixon Debate Ability Not Surprising

Petersburg, Va. — The Rev. Carl W. Haley, pastor of Washington Street Methodist church, wasn't surprised at all that Vice President Nixon held up his end of a running exchange with Soviet Premier Khrushchev in Moscow. The minister was one of 13 students at Duke University Divinity school to rent a house during the depression years. Nixon was the only law student in the group and Haley says he won every argument.

Dignity, Courtesy Made John Lawe Great Trader

His Son Platted Land Now Site Of Kaukauna

BY JACK RUDOLPH
Post-Crescent News Service

The last of the important pre-United States figures to establish himself in Wisconsin was John Lawe, who came as a boy of 15 and remained for half a century. English, half Jewish and a Polish in a tight little French Catholic community, he had two strikes on him to start with but nobody could get him out.

In an active career of over 50 years he became one of the most successful men of his day, respected by friends and rivals alike. He never had any real enemies.

John Lawe was born in 1782 either at Bristol or York, England, the son of a British army officer. He was brought to Canada as a youngster, his family settling in Quebec. In 1797 he was sent to LaBaye (Green Bay) as an apprentice to his uncle, Joseph Franks, a little known figure in Wisconsin history but probably the first non-French white man to settle west of Lake Michigan.

Bought Out Uncle

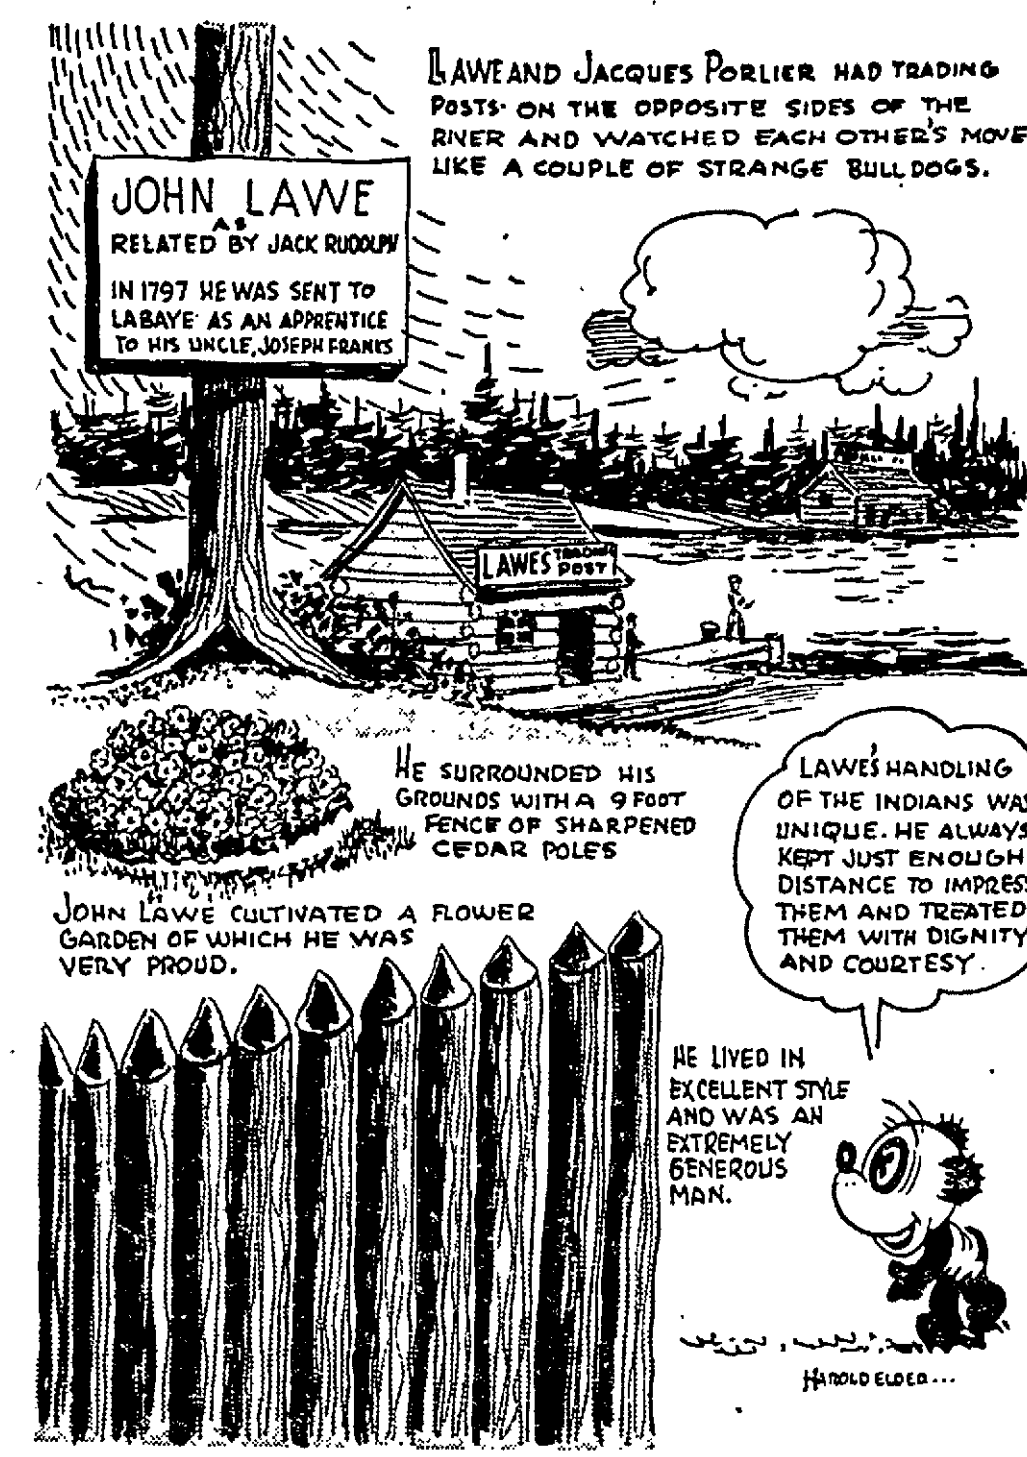

He remained with his uncle for several years, acquiring a thorough knowledge of the fur trade and an astonishing grasp of the technique of handling Indians. When Franks decided to return to Canada some time before the War of 1812 Lawe bought him out, trading extensive lands in Canada for his uncle's holdings in Wisconsin. Franks thought he got the better of the deal but Lawe never had reason to regret it.

On the face of things he should have encountered rough going against business rivals who were entrenched among the Indians through long association and intermarriage. But he knew the game and during his apprenticeship had built a position of influence and trust among the savages rivalled only by Augustin Grignon.

His handling of the Indians was unique. He always kept just enough distance to impress them, treated them with dignity and courtesy, maintained strict and formal accounts and paid them according to a set scale of values.

Wolf River Operator

As a result his redskin customers were loyal, and although he got pretty fed up with them at times, as several of his letters reveal, he never let them know it. He enjoyed a virtual monopoly on the west shore of Green Bay as far as Lake Shawano and the Wolf river.

Lawe's rivalry with Jacques Porlier was particularly keen. He and Porlier had trading posts on opposite sides of the river and watched each other's every move like a couple of strange bulldogs. As Deborah Martin put it, between them "the ethics of the fur trade were always strictly enforced." One of those ethics was to get the other fellow any way you could short of murder, but Lawe was very good at keeping one eye on the back of his neck.

In spite of the competition he and the courtly Porlier shared a mutual liking and respect. In fact, both looked on the rivalry as a good natured game and strictly a private affair. Let anyone else try to horn in and they promptly closed ranks.

Outsmarted in Deal

The only time he was ever outsmarted was by the American Fur Co. Although he, Porlier and the Grignons were independent operators they all purchased goods from and sold furs to the company. The latter's northern department manager, Ramsey Crooks, finally suggested they form a partnership to deal with his firm.

Since Lawe had once worked for both the Hudson's Bay and Astor outfits he should have known better. He swallowed the bait, however, when Crooks promised to help the new combination in every way.

Crooks did, but there was a gimmick in it. The A. F. C. granted liberal credit until the partners were in too deep to get out, then slowly hiked the price on goods while lowering the price it would pay for furs. To cover the indebtedness the company took mortgages on the partners' great land holdings in and around the Fox river valley.

Call for Payment

For years Crooks let things ride, lulling the Green Bay traders into a false sense of security until he had them on the cuff for about $35,000. Then the fur company abruptly called for payment. Since this was impossible, Crooks and Astor foreclosed the mortgages in 1834. Lawe took a bad beating but being a better businessman than the rest he made a gradual recovery.

In addition to his fur trading, which he carried on from a large post and landing on a sand spit at the foot of Porlier street called Lawe's Point, he was active in many phases of community life.

During the War of 1812 he was a lieutenant in the British service. His only active campaigning was against an unsuccessful American thrust at Mackinac, but he did a good job of wheeling or 'squeezing food supplies for the English forces out of the little settlement.

Brown Co. Justice

After the war he took the oath of allegiance to the United States, was confirmed in the ownership of his land claims and went right on with his business. In 1880 he was named an associate justice of Brown county and succeeded Porlier as probate judge in 1822.

He resigned in 1824 in favor of his protegee Nicholas Bean, whom he had more or less pulled out of the gutter. Right up to his death on Feb. 11, 1846, he continued to

Under the Capitol Dome

Much Interest Shown In Sen. John Kennedy

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison — One thing that Sen. John Kennedy's genteel but swiftly paced campaign appearances around western Wisconsin showed last week is that there is a lively public interest in this most youthful of the major aspirants for the White House.

It is one thing to note that a political personality is able to attract a good slice of the populace into a meeting hall to see him and meet him and to hear what he has to say.

It is quite another to assume that the size of the audiences equates the degree of public support. Since the Willie canvass of Wisconsin in 1944, when many of the professional observers were burned painfully, most reporters have been chary about making assumptions. In the case of Willie they came to look and to hear, in provocative throngs, and then left to vote against him in the primary which ended his career.

Yet with all these things being equal the politician feels good when he is drawing listeners. And Kennedy can draw listeners. This correspondent would doubt that there is another major figure on the political scene today who could rustle up the crowds Kennedy drew in some of the small towns of southwestern Wisconsin last weekend.

IMPRESSIONS

There is, to the professional observer who travels in close company for a couple of days, something unreal about the Kennedy venture nevertheless.

It is not only that this slim and earnest young man looks like everybody's younger brother-in-law, or that he speaks like a young assistant professor of history who believes the dean may be listening.

It is also, perhaps, the impression created by his girlish wife, who serves as a constant reminder that here is an example of youthful enterprise that is rarely observed in the upper levels of American statecraft. Mrs. Kennedy, pretty, silent, the center of all eyes, must bring some doubts into the minds of many of the on-lookers.

As one admiring, but yet dubious matron in Prairie du Chien put it: "Will we have a 30-year-old first lady?"

Kennedy is the antithesis of the hearty, back-slapping campaigner that has become the stereotype. He is not reserved, exactly; perhaps well-bred would be the better phrase. There is nothing familiar about him. The reporter who wants to get acquainted, even when he is part of the official caravan, must take the initiative, which may explain why some of the Washington correspondents aboard related that he is relatively less known in the press galleries than most other front-line politicians of the time.

This state has seen some pretty rough and ready customers on its campaign platforms. There is an enormous contrast between the most plebeian of them and this young man from Boston and the Choate school, who will sprinkle a 15 minute speech with historical allusions ranging from Waterloo to Concord, and historical personalities from Metternich to Dante to John Adams and Woodrow Wilson.

WHAT NOW?

Will he run in the Wisconsin presidential preference primary next spring? The orthodox reply would be an active leader in business and public affairs.

In 1807 Lawe married Therese Rankin, who had previously been the common law wife of Louis Grignon. Bella French delicately explained that she had been the wife of Grignon "according to the custom of the times and had parted from him." In other words, Therese walked out.

The situation gave rise in later years to the rumor that Lawe and Grignon had traded wives during a drinking bout. It wasn't true. Therese was his first and only wife and she survived him.

Son Platted Kaukauna

They had six daughters and two sons, one of whom never married. The other son, George, attained the distinction of being the oldest white settler of Wisconsin before he died and the "Father of Kaukauna," which he platted in 1850. A daughter, Mary Polly, cut quite a scandalous swathe in her day, and her famous piano is still preserved in Cotton House.

Lawe lived in excellent style and was an extremely generous man. He made it a policy to take care of any old, sick or impoverished Indian who appealed to him and for all his astuteness was a patsy for a good sob story. Almost anyone could work him for a liberal handout, most of which were never repaid.

In one respect, though, he was a typical Englishman. He liked his privacy, and when he built a fine house above his trading post he surrounded the five acre grounds with a 9-foot fence of sharpened cedar poles. Inside he cultivated a flower garden of which he was very proud, and an invitation to see it became quite a distinction.

Lawe almost lost his home in the foreclosure debacle. It was only saved by the action of James Duane Doty in deeding the lot to Mrs. Lawe when he platted the Village of Astor.

Lawe had always been a faithful friend to the aggressive judge and, was the first to come forward to settle with his creditors. To give Doty what little credit he deserves from the miserable business, he braved the wrath of John Jacob Astor to help his old friend.

As a young man Lawe was very slender but gained weight as he grew older and in middle age weighed over 300 pounds. In spite of his bulk, however, he possessed great physical strength and endurance.

John Lawe is buried in Woodlawn cemetery, Green Bay, just a short distance inside the Webster avenue gates. His grave, marked by a tall marble shaft, is virtually the only one of any of the early settlers whose location is known today.

be that he is obviously preparing for such an enterprise in his repeated swings into the state. Why waste all the time otherwise?

Yet, for what it is worth, this reporter is not so sure about it. There appears at least an even chance that his strategy is to build up such a public image of popularity, so to impress himself upon the politicians as a front-runner, that he may pass up Wisconsin safely and forfeit its small delegation to such a man as Humphrey, who would not be counted a formidable rival at Los Angeles.

That would be a bad blow to those ambitious politicians of the Wisconsin Democratic party who have put all of their chips on their bet that he will enter here, win here, and permit them to dominate the party machinery as a consequence.

Catholic Churches Plan Fairs

79 YEARS AGO

Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for the week of Oct. 2, 1880.

The congregation of St. Joseph Church is busily engaged in preparations for a forthcoming fair to be held in the large front hall of their new elegant school building, which now is nearing completion.

The Rev. Frey, who is building the school, is a gentleman of truly enlarged culture and generous educated impulses. The expense of the building will not fall short of $22,000 and will be a credit to the city.

Rev. Father Tanguay, assisted by the ladies of his congregation, is making great preparations for a fair to be held at St. Mary's Church within a couple of weeks. The purpose is to secure funds to help pay for the expenses of completing the church.

Indifference Greets Art of D. H. Lawrence

Author's Paintings Once Banned In London, Now in New Mexico

BY IKE FLORES

Taos, N. M., — Paintings by the author of "Lady Chatterley's Lover," which were banned in London, are on exhibition at Taos and they're hardly causing an arched eyebrow.

New Mexicans seem to be indifferent about the whole thing.

Such was not the case when the nine paintings by D. H. Lawrence were exhibited in London in 1929. London bobbies confiscated them and the courts promptly branded them as "gross, coarse, hideous, unlovely and obscene."

This was shortly after Lawrence's controversial "Lady Chatterley's Lover" had been banned in England.

Lawrence, ill in Italy, defended his works long and loud but to no avail.

Paintings Suppressed

A public trial, with many authorities backing Lawrence and testifying for the right of free expression of the arts, failed to keep the paintings from being suppressed.

And, they haven't been shown anywhere since, until now.

The oil canvases, ranging in size from 39 by 58 to 9 by 11 inches, are owned by Saki Karavas, owner of La Fonda Hotel de Taos.

Karavas acquired them from the estate of Mrs. Lawrence, who died in Taos in 1956.

He has put them on exhibition in the hotel in what used to be an art gallery but is now used exclusively for the Lawrence exhibit.

Agas Khan Interested

Karavas won't say how much he paid for them but does say that the Agas Khan once tried to buy them in Europe from the Lawrence estate for a reported $60,000.

They illustrate some of Lawrence's literary themes.

Lawrence, an Englishman who disliked Britons, lived in New Mexico, off and on, from 1922 until his death in 1930.

Productive Period

This was a productive period in his life, and most of his dabbling in painting was done then. He loved New Mexico and eventually he and his wife, Frieda, bought a ranch at Valdez, near this art colony town.

Santa Fe poet and writer Witter Bynner was an intimate friend of the Lawrence's.

Bynner has written an excellent biography describing many of Lawrence's peculiarities, manias and fetishes — among them the idea of founding a colony where Lawrence could be the leader of many disciples.

Frieda Lawrence, too, is one of New Mexico's legends. She left her English husband and children and ran away with Lawrence. It is generally believed she was a big setting influence on Lawrence.

After Lawrence's death in Europe in 1930, she had his body cremated and the ashes buried at their New Mexico ranch.

There's a shrine there now commemorating the author, and the ranch has been given to the University of New Mexico to be used by aspiring writers.

Frieda Lawrence is buried near her husband's remains.

43 Graduates Of AHS Win Scholarships

$25,000 Total; Class of 1957 Has Best Record

Scholarships amounting to $25,000 were given to 43 students of the Appleton High school 1959 graduating class, according to a survey made by Miss Annabelle Wolf, dean of girls.

In 1958 there were 39 student scholarship recipients. The percentage of class members in 1959 was smaller than the percentage in 1958. There also has been an increase in the total of scholarship aid given this year.

In the last five years, the class of 1957 has had the best record, with 48 students receiving grants, comprising 11.6 per cent of the class — the highest totals for the period.

Many UW Winners

Scholarships were awarded to the following students in the class of 1959 now attending the University of Wisconsin: Bonnie Barlow, Elks' leadership scholarship; John Baumgartner, F. George Nader In New Series

'Man and Challenge' Unusual in Theme, Starts Saturday

BY BOB THOMAS

Hollywood — "Most of the other new shows on TV this season are copies of successful ones. At least we're trying some- thing different."

This was George Nader's brave appraisal of his new series, "The Man and The Challenge," which appears on NBC Saturday nights. Judging from his rundown on it, I had to admit that it did sound different. Now it's up to the viewers to determine if they want new kinds of programs or prefer the same steady diet of westerns, private eyes and westerns.

The man is Nader and the challenge is how far human capacity can be extended.

Nader delves into such things as the American astronauts are undergoing to prepare for space flight. He also has done stories concerning such earth-bound activities as bullfighting and skiing.

In the ski subject, he is assigned to determine why Americans had not won against Europeans in downhill races. He takes some skiers into the mountains and proposes a dangerous downhill run. He discovers that the well-fed Americans are unwilling to take the chance, while Europeans would risk their limbs to seek fame and fortune. An avalanche places the party in a position where they have to race downward at almost superhuman speed. And they do it.

New styling and balance of design are teamed with economy in the 17 new Oldsmobile models for 1960, according to Rector Motor company. The new cars feature a redesigned engine in the "88" series for use with regular gasoline.

Oregon Saw Chain Ads to Run in Post-Crescent

Once again the Appleton Post-Crescent has been selected to participate in a nationwide newspaper advertising campaign conducted by the makers of Oregon Saw Chain. The campaign begins this week in 11 Midwestern states. The ads are appearing in 559 publications.

The main reason for this repeat action is the success of last fall's campaign. The 1958 sales results indicate that local newspapers are a key advertising medium. Johnson Motors, a super 75 horsepower Sea-Horse power Johnson Motors' step-up in power for 1960 which also introduces a new 40 horsepower model. The versatile "power package" incorporates mightier muscle with such Johnson innovations as the industry's first automatic choke, a high speed gear case and a broad selection of propellers to suit the boatman's needs at no extra cost.

Rippin' Good Cookies, Martin J. Runge, 903 N. Superior street, Appleton, retail statesman for Rippin' Good Cookies, attended the annual sales meeting at Ripon Foods, Inc., Ripon, Sept. 25 and 26. According to W. C. Milbrandt, retail sales manager, more than 50 salesmen and supervisors were in attendance at the two-day meeting, coming to Ripon from cities and towns in Wisconsin, Iowa, Illinois, Minnesota and the Dakotas.

Oldsmobile has added two new body styles to the 1960 lines. They are the 3-seat Fiesta station wagons in the "88" series. Two of the four wagons feature a full-size rear facing third seat.

Chrome-plated bars in groups of three give the curved grille a wide look. Headlights are placed horizontally with the outboard pair set behind the inboard pair. The parking lights are recessed in the wrap-around section of the bumper. In all series there are new rear axle ratios. Maneuverability is increased. The lines are emphasized by chrome accent strip starting at the headlight on the front fender, sweeping back to the rear quarter where it dips. See the new Olds at your Oldsmobile dealer, Rector Motor company, 212 N. Division street.

Best Bow and Arrow Hunting Is Now, according to John Schoenike of Clintonville, owner of Stalker Archery company, and he ought to know. He is shown above with his seventeenth deer, the largest number registered in Wisconsin Conservation department records. The Stalker Archery company is located on Highway 45 on the west edge of Clintonville.

John Schoenike started an archery business in his basement in 1940, the year he bagged his first eight-point buck. Since 1945, his Clintonville store, operating under the name of the Stalker Archery company, has been classified as one of the most complete archery stores in the Midwest. With the crisp October air, the fall scenery and turning of the leaves, Schoenike says that the best part of bow and arrow hunting is still ahead. Now is the time to come in for your equipment and take advantage of the month. Having an archery range in his place permits John to teach all beginners how to shoot and to handle the equipment properly. He has instructed over a thousand beginners and with his successful hunting career is qualified to help when purchasing the proper weight and length bow to fit. It is not too early to shop for Christmas gifts and John suggests an archery outfit for someone on your list. Buy a gift certificate so after Christmas the lucky receiver can come in to be properly outfitted and receive free instructions. The Stalker Archery company stocks approximately 300 bows in a variety of makes and weights, ranging in price from $4.95 through $72.50.

Strong Family Resemblance between the all-new Corvair and Chevrolet's conventional line of passenger cars for 1960 can be seen at Gustman Chevrolet Sales, Inc., in Kaukauna, Seymour and Marinette. It is more than two and one-half feet shorter than this Impala Sport Sedan, and the aluminum air cooled engine is at the rear. Hundreds of visitors saw the low fleet styling of these new cars at Gustman's open house this weekend. There still are over 100 1959 Chevrolets and Oldsmobiles at Gustman's.

Best Dairymen Use Bulls Like These — Why don't you? asks Valley Proved Sire Service. Proved sires, whose composite proof and average index are shown in the chart above, are a mark of true breeding economy, Valley experts state. For further information about your nearest technician, phone Valley Proved Sire Service at RE 3-1962.

When an ABS distributor, that when he breeds a cow to spend today, but the vast increase in herd production in the years to come, the experts say. It is possible to continue for years to come to enjoy the fruits of your original investment as your ABS sired daughters increase your herd average with long continued production.

Every good dairyman knows that with the inflationary trend the only way he can hope to maintain dollar buying value is to have an increase in herd production with the addition of each generation of ABS sired heifers to his milking line. The basis of true dairy breeding economy is not for the few dollars which you

Former Appleton Girl Wins Prize in Zenith Contest

Mrs. Harvey Mincey, 5501 Oshkosh st., Ripon, was judged sixth prize winner in the ninth week of Zenith's $250,000 Gift of Hearing contest. It was announced today by H. W. Nussbicker of the Conway Hotel Lobby, authorized Zenith hearing aid dealer. Mrs. Mincey is the former Miss Avonne Leupold of 721 N. Appleton street. She was employed for several years in the office of the Appleton Coated Paper company. "As winner, Mrs. Mincey will have $500 in Zenith hearing aids donated in her name to the Christian Medical Society," Nussbicker stated. In addition, Mrs. Mincey wins a 14-inch Zenith portable television for her personal use. Twenty-four other winners will receive prizes ranging from Zenith Space Command TV sets to table top radios for the hard of hearing. Each week for ten weeks, contest winners like Mrs. Mincey will give in their names gifts totaling $250,000 to further expand the work now being done by rehabilitation agencies.

"This gift of hearing can benefit the entire community," Nussbicker stated. "We have determined that one American in ten suffers some form of hearing loss. Helping the hard of hearing return to active participation in society constitutes a tremendous potential for national defense and in our economic and industrial life."

Buy Best for Less is the motto at Lauer's Piano Shop, 1358 W. Prospect avenue, where everyone who wants music in their homes can find the organ or piano of their choice.

Organs are in great evidence at Lauer's, including the Baldwin, Kinsman and the new Thomas organs. The Kinsman carries a five-year guarantee. For those who prefer the richer tone of the organ in their home, there is a large selection from which to choose. Purchasers can have a free trial in their own home and take three years to pay. Ten lessons will be provided free with each organ. Mrs. Lauer said it was much easier to learn to play the organ than the piano. "Learn to play the organ and bring music into your home that can be enjoyed for years to come," Mrs. Lauer said.

She has been in the business for over 30 years and her shop has created a peaceful atmosphere for a setting of the fine instruments she sells. There is no rushing at Lauer's and the whole family is welcome to come and browse as long as they like.

Mrs. Lauer has found that selling in her home makes possible her very reasonable prices because she is way out of the high rent district.

Brides Pick October Dates

An October wedding seems to be the choice of many Fox Cities brides and the autumn season provides an opportunity to use the popular golds, russets and greens both on the church altars and in the attendants' dresses. The homes and tables at the receptions will also reflect the fall festival season with bouquets and centerpieces of mums, asters and colored leaves. Honeymoon destinations will be ablaze with color as the first frost has touched many areas and brightened the scene.

Langeland-Brinkman

In a ceremony at 5 p.m. today, Miss Dolores Jean Langeland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Langeland, Garden Homes, Ill., will become the bride of Earl C. Brinkman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Brinkman, 810 W. Summer street. The Rev. H. B. Poppin will officiate at the double ring ceremony at the First Reformed church of Mount Greenwood, Chicago.

Miss Arlene Kob, Chicago, will be the maid of honor. Donald Langeland, Chicago, brother of the bride, will be best man. The bride's twin brothers, Lester and Lesley Langeland, Chicago, will usher.

Miss Langeland attended schools in Chicago and has been employed as a secretary in Chicago. Her fiancé is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin and is employed at Neenah foundry. After a wedding trip to Tennessee, the young couple will reside at 817 1/2 W. Oklahoma street, Appleton.

Pepper Features A Spicy History

Pepper, America's favorite spice, is coming back on the market in larger supplies these days.

Behind this statement lies an interesting story—a modern chapter in the glamorous, turbulent history of this fascinating spice.

Before World War II, America imported an impressive 50,000,000 pounds of pepper a year, on the average. About 80 per cent of our supply came from Indonesia with the remainder brought principally from India.

War naturally curtailed all of our imports, and spices such as pepper were hard hit. But, with pepper, the war proved even more devastating. Indonesia was an area that imported most of its food in exchange for items like pepper that it produced. During the long Japanese occupation of the islands, pepper vines were neglected or destroyed.

On the face of it, this would not seem too serious, but, pepper vines take from five to seven years to mature under careful cultivation. Thus Indonesia, our major supplier, was not only all but wiped out during the war, but remained that way for years after, keeping supplies in this country low and prices high.

From a wartime low of 1,000,877 pounds, pepper imports have gradually come back to approximately 35,000,000 pounds, according to the American Spice Trade Association. Indonesia is now increasing production each year.

Pepper is often called the bellwether of the spice industry. In this country, where we traditionally use about 35 per cent of the total world supply, pepper accounts for more than 60 per cent of spice dollar volume.

Pepper is sold in four forms in the U. S.—whole, and ground black pepper and whole and ground white pepper, all of which come from the same berry. The pepper berry, or "peppercorn," is the fruit of a trailing vine, native to the East Indies.

Black and White

A peppercorn is composed of two main parts, a dark colored outer shell or husk and a light colored kernel. If the peppercorn is picked and ground as is, the product is called black pepper. Notice in your table shaker of black pepper that there are both light and dark particles. On the other hand, if the pepper berries are allowed to ripen further on the vines until the dark husk is easily separated from the kernel before grinding, the product is white pepper. Slightly less pungent, but with more bouquet than black pepper, the white product is used mostly where dark color is not wanted; for instance, in salad dressings like mayonnaise.

In most growing areas, the pepper vines are trained to climb poles or other supports like grapes. When ready for harvesting for use as black pepper, the berries look like clusters of red currants. After picking, they are spread out in the sun where they dry thoroughly, changing color and shriveling until finally becoming the black, wrinkled peppercorns with which we are familiar.

Pepper has been the leading spice throughout history. It has often been used as money, and the search for it was the motivation behind voyages of discovery like those of Columbus and Vasco da Gama. It even played an important part in the early growth of America.

Form of Wealth

Throughout the Middle Ages, pepper was recognized as a form of wealth. Three thousand pounds of pepper were among the ransom demands of Alaric, King of the Goths, when he laid siege to Rome. Rents, taxes, dowries and inheritances in this period often included sums of pepper.

A colorful collection of antique glass paperweights absorbs the interest of Mrs. Harry Stroebbe, left, shown with several of the 40 objects she began accumulating 10 years ago. The bright colors are magnified through the heavy glass and pictured above are some of her authentic European antiques. Except for the late Mrs. Evangeline Bergstrom, Neenah, Mrs. Stroebbe is the only known area collector of the artistic paperweights.

Hobbyist Discovers Glass Paperweights At Country Auction

BY CAROL RICHARDSON
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

"I had always read that people needed a hobby," said Mrs. Harry Stroebbe, who collects antique glass paperweights, "so I started with silly things like mustache cups and salt and pepper shakers and they didn't interest me at all."

Then almost by accident, Mrs. Stroebbe, who lives on the island originally settled by her late husband's family, went to a country auction and bid on a package containing glass paperweights. "I was just fascinated by the glass and colors," she said enthusiastically.

After 10 years pursuing her hobby she has 40 of the colorful weights, 25 of which are rare antiques. The others are modern designs. "I have one of black glass with a deer in it from Italy," she described her modern pieces, "and one from Kentucky has a horse set in the glass."

Mrs. Stroebbe is a member of a Paperweight Collectors' association in New York, which helps authenticate antiques for members and publishes bulletins on the hobby. "As far as I know, I'm the only paperweight collector in the area," she explained.

The hobbyist is a frequent visitor to the Bergstrom Art Museum in Neenah, where the collection of the late Mrs. Evangeline Bergstrom is on permanent display. The group of paperweights is valued at $350,000 and Mrs. Bergstrom wrote one of the few publications on the subject.

No Duplicates

"There are no duplicates in the authentic French antiques," Mrs. Stroebbe explained "as each craftsman experimented individually with colors in the glass." She added that the first weights were made in France during the 18th century at three factories, St. Louis, Clichy and Baccarat. Other craftsmen in per, along with other property or currency.

Guards on the docks of London during Elizabethan times, were required to sew up their pockets so that they would not be able to pilfer peppercorns from arriving ships. One of the earliest of the English trade guilds, formed in 1345, was known as the "Worshipful Guild of the Peppercorns."

The United States might not have survived infancy as a nation if it had not been for pepper. In 1796 Captain Jonathan Carnes of Salem discovered a source of pepper in Sumatra, and our young country virtually cornered the pepper trade for a while. Taxes on pepper imports and re-exports paid five per cent of our total annual budgets at one point. And the pepper trade contributed to the growth of America's merchant marine.

Italy, Germany and England became interested in the art and produced their own designs.

Her friends and area antique dealers know of Mrs. Stroebbe's interest in the colorful paperweights and keep her informed when they learn where some are available.

On her travels she explores antique shops and buys one or two of the weights each year. She has several designs obtained through Green Bay antique dealers and a bright yellow weight in her collection was purchased in Provincetown, Mass.

Other weights are from Florida, Kentucky and New Jersey and some were gifts from friends who searched family antique shelves upon learning of Mrs. Stroebbe's hobby.

"I'm happy to show my collection to friends," she added happily, "but they don't mean much to other people." A large weight of bright green glass entitled "bursting star" was made in Bristol, England, and tiny alcohol droplets in the glass form a fireworks effect.

Gay Designs

Another colorful item shows gay, little hard candies used in Christmas stockings set into the glass. Still another features the grandmother's flower garden pattern found in quilts. Bright blue latticework sparkles through the glass in another of Mrs. Stroebbe's favorites.

The collector enjoys delving into the history and background of paperweights in her collection. It is no easy job because of the limited material available.

"Next I plan to install indirect lighting in my husband's gun cabinet," Mrs. Stroebbe added, "so I can display my collection properly."

Wife Imagining Girl in Every Port Only Creating Problem

BY ANN LANDERS
DEAR ANN: I've been married 15 years to a man I trusted and considered a fine father and husband. I always laughed at jokes about traveling men and said it couldn't happen to me.
Today he received a letter from a senior ita he Ann Landers met while conventioning in Mexico City. She's coming this way and would like to meet his family. He showed me the letter and I almost had a heart spell.
He met this girl in the hotel jewelry shop. She helped select the earrings he brought me.
Now things are beginning to fall into place. When he comes in off the road he's so tired he falls into bed with out a decent hello. I used to think traveling knocked him out. Now I think it's the night life.
What shall I do about this girl? Am I magnifying things? — 33
Dear 33: Your imagination is indeed working overtime. If this enchilada had a romantic interest in your husband she would not be writing to his home asking to meet his family. And if there had been anything between them, you would not have seen the letter.

Men who travel work hard. Some may have an assortment of dolls tucked away in key cities, but most traveling men are too busy trying to make a living.
Tell your husband you'd be pleased to have the girl for coffee. Skip the accusations. You could create a problem where none exists.
DEAR ANN: The letter from the 16-year-old girl who couldn't talk to her mother hit home. I couldn't talk to my mother either — but for a different reason.
Mother was the clearing house for all the neighborhood gossip. No information was safe. I could die when I think of the intimate things she told members of her bridge club, my aunts, the neighbors and even some of my teachers.
To make matters worse, Mother was a great guesser. She'd get a few facts and add to them like mad. I had to lock up my diary, hide my personal letters and make phone calls from the drug store.
So, please, Ann, tell these mothers who feel hurt that maybe their daughters won't talk to them because they've learned that Mother can't keep anything to herself. — Betrayed.
DEAR ANN: Last night my husband and I had dinner at his mother's. After dinner she went into the living room and said she was too tired to do dishes. This was O.K. with me. I felt she was entitled to rest after having cooked for us all.

What burned me up is her fat daughter plopped down in the living room and talked to the men, while I did the dishes myself. This isn't the first time I've been stuck.
My husband says his sister has a hot temper and it isn't worth a fight. He advised me to say nothing for Mom's sake and be a good sport. I think I should speak up next time, but I don't know what to say. — Dishpan Hands
Dear Dishpan: I see no reason for you to let your sister-in-law take advantage of you. Simply say: "That was a delicious meal, Mother. Hortense and I will do the dishes and you can relax." Or — if the lazy lout has escaped to the living room — say (good naturedly); "Grab a towel while they're hot. Those who eat must work."
To learn how to keep your boy friend in line without losing him, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Necking and Petting—And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.
(Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

HIS AND HERS —

He Your loving admirer (and more)
She says he loves me

Self-Conscious Suitor

"... He says he loves me and would like to marry me some day but I don't know whether to believe him. He's quite a comic so I can't judge if he's really serious."

Growing up is sometimes painful and your boy friend suffers more than you may realize. His narrow letters indicate sensitivity and shyness. His clowning is probably to cover his self-consciousness, for essentially he's serious-minded. Occasionally there are signs of depression in his writing as when the words "and," "mine" slant downhill. Usually, though, his words are optimistically up-lifted.

Your own softly written script reveals a kindly, considerate person. Your word-endings curve gently outward like a helping hand. You know how to put him at ease, which must appeal strongly to this tense young man. Your composure also reassures him.

Don't try to change him nor take him too lightly. He needs someone like you and, with your protective nature, you love to be needed.

You are probably both very young. "Someday" may be quite a way off. Although actual age in years cannot be determined by handwriting,

Hostess Told to Buy Coasters

BY EMILY POST
Dear Mrs. Post: What is a courteous hostess expected to do when she sees her guests setting their beverage glasses down on her finest table tops and knows all the time that no matter how quickly these wet spots are wiped away after they leave, there will be the inevitable white ring forever after that?

Answer: She should buy coasters and see that one is put under each glass. Should a careless person not put the glass back on the coaster, the hostess would have to. This sounds almost as bad perhaps as trying to watch for flies, fly-swatter in hand! But as a matter of fact, most people will put their glasses back on their coasters.

Invite Couple
Dear Mrs. Post: Would it be permissible to return a dinner invitation, which included my husband, with an invitation to the wife alone, to a woman's bridge party? Or must the return invitation include the husband?

Answer: I'm sorry to have to say that an invitation to one alone will not repay an invitation given to you both. You need not invite them to dinner if you do not customarily give dinner parties. But you should ask them both to whatever type of party you are in the habit of giving. It might be a buffet supper or no more than an afternoon tea.

Spot Watching Valuable In Taking Some Tricks

Opening lead — H A
The optimistic double of five clubs was made by the writer of this column. I thought that North was trying to steal our hand away from us, and I was not disposed to let him get away with it. Besides, my wife was my partner, and I didn't want her to think I could be pushed around.
I opened the ace of hearts and then shifted to a diamond. South won the diamond, drew two rounds of trumps, ruffed a heart in dummy, and then cashed the ace and queen of diamonds.
Crucial Suit
It was clear that spades was the crucial suit. We needed two spade tricks to defeat the contract.
Declarer led the nine of spades from dummy, my wife covered with the 10, and South finessed the jack. It dawned on me that my seven of spades was going to defeat the contract!
But first, it was important to let South hold the trick with the jack of spades. It would have been fatal to win the trick with the ace of spades, for any return would give the rest to South.
Declarer got back to dummy with a trump to lead spades again, but there was no winning play. The eight would be covered by the queen, which would leave my ace-seven in commanding position over the king. If declarer led the low spades from dummy, East would play low and South would still have to lose two spade tricks.
As the play actually went, the eight was led and covered by queen and king. I took the setting trick with the seven of spades.
"Nice double," my wife said ironically.
"I know the value of my cards," I replied loftily, waving the seven of spades in the air.
Daily Question
As dealer, you hold: S—A 7 2, H—A 10 9 6 5, D—10 8 5, C—Q 2. What do you say?
Answer: Pass. The hand is not quite worth an opening bid. If your queen of clubs were the queen of hearts you would have a borderline opening bid even with the same number of points. You may stretch to open with a strong major suit, but not with a mediocre suit.

Family Diary

Saturday was one of those glorious sunny October days with blue haze in the distance and the leaves all crimson and gold. Mid-afternoon John came into the kitchen where I was frothing a mocha butter cake. "Let's go for a ride in the country," he said.
I looked out to the yard where Bruce and Tommy had dropped their rakes to wrestle with Boozer in the pile of leaves. "I thought you wanted to finish the yard today."
"It can wait," John said. "I knew he was right. The leaves would indeed wait, but the bright golden weather could vanish overnight in cold winds and long days of depressing rain.

Traffic Fast
At the last minute everyone decided to come along. Sally and I climbed into the front seat with John and Libby, Milti. Tommy and Bruce scrambled into the back. The traffic was fast and unexpectedly heavy. "I believe every careless driver in the state must be on the road today," John said. I scarcely listened. John is such a good driver. Riding with him is pure joy.
He swerved suddenly and I clutched at Sally and the window frame. Two cars shot over the crest of the hill almost side by side. We were forced out on the shoulder. I saw the grinning face of one man as he raced by. John was shaken and grim. "I just hope there's a patrol car in this area. I hope he catches some of those fools before they kill people."
We crossed the bridge and headed out toward the orchard district, one of our favorite rides. John relaxed and the children in back began to sing old camp songs. I took a deep breath and leaned back to gaze happily at the harvested fields and the trim farm places and the blue, blue sky. "This is more like it," John said. He joined in the singing, his sturdy baritone adding considerably to the happy backseat chorus.

The sudden whine of a siren close behind us startled everyone into sudden silence. The big black patrol car passed, pulled off the road. John drew in behind it and stopped. The officer, a rugged, red-headed man marched back to our car. "All right, let's have a look at your license."
John produced it. "What's the trouble?"
The patrolman stared at him. "When you went around that truck you crossed over the start of a yellow no passing line."
"But I didn't see it," John said reasonably. "I couldn't see it."
Man Impassive
The man was impassive, implacable. He wrote steadily on the ticket, ripped it out of his book and thrust it at John. Then he looked at me and at the children in back. "It seems to me," he said witheringly to John, "that a man with a fine family like this would want to use a little sense in his driving. It's careless drivers like you that cause real tragedies. He stalked away, climbed into the patrol car and drove off.
We all remained speechless for an interval after his departure. Wide-eyed the children looked at their father. It was Bruce who led off angrily, "Careless driver," he mimicked. "Boy, that cop wouldn't know a careless driver if he saw one. Why isn't he out chasing some of those—"
"Hold it, Bruce," John said. His face was red, his eyes stormy. I was aware of his struggle. I knew he wanted to explode over the injustice of the situation and the indict-

Our Children

Patri Against Shared Custody of Youngsters

BY ANGELO PATRI
When a home is broken by the children given in shares to both parents the stage is set for trouble and more of it. By and by the father is married again. This means a stepmother enters the picture and unless she is an extraordinary woman she is in for a shock.
Of course the new wife knows the facts of the situation. The man is divorced, has the custody of two children for a time each year, pays alimony to his first wife but she knows these facts only in terms of words. When they come to her in terms of experience, when she learns that the alimony check makes the strict economy necessary, that the two children are conditioned to dislike her, she really begins to understand her situation. It is a truly difficult one.
Happiness Gone
When a child, or a couple of them, come into a happy home bringing discord with them, happiness flies out of the window. A couple of girls in their early teens appeared in such a home. The stepmother was prepared to welcome them as her children but they were prepared to dislike her and to do anything they could to prove it. They would not get up in the morning until they were ready, or they got up so early that they disturbed their parents. They

Use Hands, Knees, Head, Feet For Juggling Toy Balloons

BY CAPPY DICK
Did you ever try juggling toy balloons? It's exciting! Today's fun-project is a game you can play by yourself, or with any number of pals. All you need for equipment are five toy balloons. Round ones are the easiest to juggle, but when you have become skilled you will find it fun to try your hand with balloons of various shapes, including the long, cork-screw ones.
Inflate the five balloons and tie them securely with a short piece of string. Throw them into the air, one after the other. The game is to see how long you can keep all five in the air without letting one fall to the ground.
If a balloon is held in the hands for even a second, a foul is called. The balloons must be batted back into the air with your hands, fists, head, elbow, knee or feet. The boy in the illustration has just bounded one of the balloons up with his knee.
You will be busy keeping track of five balloons, especially if you are playing outdoors in the wind. But you soon will become skilled handling five at a time, so then try six, then seven and finally balloons of odd shapes.
If two or three are playing

Can you keep them all up?

this game, take turns juggling the balloons. Keep time to see who can do it the longest without letting a balloon fall to the ground.
After everyone has become skilled, it is a good stunt for the juggler to call to someone to take his place. That player must step in and take over the juggling without a break in the routine.

Evacuation Plans Not Elaborate, Home Office Expert Tells Seminar

BY JACK GLASNER
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Madison — England does not have elaborate evacuation plans like the United States because five fair-sized nuclear weapons would leave no place to go in the country, D. E. H. Wynter, director of intelligence, Great Britain's home office, said Friday night here.

Wynter spoke to about 10 civil defense, industrial and state government leaders in a non-military defense seminar sponsored by the Carnegie and Johnson Wax company foundations. The meeting closes today with an analysis of Wisconsin's civil defense program.

England thinks no one wants war, but it is still possible for one to develop, Wynter said. "We look upon civil defense as the nation's fourth arm, with the army, navy and air force," he added.

Maintain Morale
A deliberate policy of civil defense in Britain is to maintain civilian morale. For example, Wynter said, clergy men during the annual fall recruitment drive endorse civil defense as defending the home, which "we take to be a Christian virtue."

The responsibility for British defense — called Civil Emergency organization — rests with local authorities exactly as do education, roads, water, sewage and health, Wynter explained.

Local authorities operate civil defense themselves with guidance from the home office. The home office secretary coordinates all other central government ministries which have jurisdiction over parts of civil defense, Wynter said.

The U. S. Defense Federal (The U. S. system of civil defense, while it depends on local directors, coordinators and commanders, is primarily federally directed and administered.)

The central British government pays 75 per cent of approved civil defense expenditures. Local governments pay 25 per cent. The country is split into 11 regions. Regional administrators may approve local expenditures, Wynter said.

A system of observer posts established during World war I, and about to be put out of business several years ago, was put into operation as a fallout monitoring organization, British fallout monitoring stations are never more than 10 miles apart and report into 40 centers, Wynter said.

Each of the 11 regions, a continuous record of fallout is maintained on a chart in an underground control center.

Cities Like Counties
There is no difference in treatment in civil defense matters between counties and large cities, Wynter indicated.

During World war II when large segments of the British population were evacuated from cities, many people drifted back to their homes during lulls in bombing. It seems, Wynter commented, that the people didn't mind being evacuated while the bombing was going on, but wanted to go home when it ended.

About 800 Persons Attended the annual Valley Fair fall style show Friday night despite rainy weather. Above, Miss Dorothy Kleist, Appleton, models a handsome daytime outfit that teams a slim, red jersey dress with a red and black plaid greatcoat set off by its fashionable raccoon collar. cocktail dresses, raccoon collared coat and suits, each with its distinctive styling and complete with accessories from hats to shoes.

Bulky knit sweaters, each different in its fashioning, teamed with tweed or plumed skirts among the matches. Boot shoes were worn with many of the casual outfits.

Women's coats featured many materials. One was fashioned of a new plastic fabric that simulates leather, another was a fur fabric that displayed full back folds that stress matching colors or fall's smartest contrasting shades highlighted the many styles presented. The fashions included casual clothes, daytime and evening wear. There were basic, slim-lined jersey dresses, dressmaker designed runway centered through the audience area, mounted the stage where they paused and posed briefly, then walked down the runway aisle on the other side.

Show Stoppers
Although each fashion held the interest of the audience, the scene stealers of the evening were the children in the show. They delighted the audience with their naturalness.

Tiny tots clad in matching outfits raced to the stage, then stumbled a bit as they tried to make the big step. Some forgot all about pause and pose instructions, others had to have a bit of guiding to make the complete journey.

One young man frankly enjoyed watching the crowd, smilingly taking his time to look over all the people from his high vantage point onstage without a thought to the smart tweed coat and cap he was modeling. A junior miss sweetly posed in her bright blue jerkin and plaid skirt outfit, then hurried to the far side of the stage to help a rather bewildered pre-schooler ahead of her down the path of the second runway.

Two young ladies paraded and posed like veterans, one in a full-skirted white flocked nylon party dress with velvet bodice and the other in blue and white pajamas topped with a blue nylon robe.

Program Applauded
Generous applause went to the entertainers — the costumed square dance group, the Jubilee Squares, who nimbly performed two numbers, a youthful couple who danced several ballroom routines, and then the Coral Islanders for their Hawaiian music presentations.

Steven Lee, 3, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. Richard Lee, 2312 S. East street, was one of the youthful stars of the Valley Fair fashion show Friday night as he sturdily walked the 100-foot runway lined with spectators. His Eton suit, bright red flannel blazer and navy blue shorts are the masculine counterpart of matching "beau and belle" outfits.

fell softly from the neckline. There was a smart reversible, black alpaca on one side and black and white tweed on the other. An evening coat of a deep royal blue material had a white orlon lining with a hood collar that slipped over the head. Others were orlon fur fabrics, crafted in fur fashion, and the popular "shaggy bear" type made of orlon pile with gay satin lining and big wooden buttons.

Tweeds, flannels, knits, the touch of fur, feather clip hats, matching purses and shoes, draped crepe gowns for dress-up wear, smart black dresses and printed jerseys were among the women's fashions.

The continental suit was modeled by a young man whose coat was in characteristic cutaway style and whose vest was red, but could be reversed to its more conservative gray side. With the suit he wore a matching bowler.

Other men's styles included the jacket coat, a bit longer than a jacket but shorter than a topcoat; tweed topcoat over a charcoal brown flannel suit, and a wool flannel car coat with insulated lining and stylish side vents.

Members of the Valley Fair Merchants association committee in charge of the style show were David Meyer, chairman, Thomas Loysen, Richard Burch and George Wohlford. Ray Brock, of WHBY, was master of ceremonies and Marianne James, Green Bay, of WFRV-TV, was fashion narrator.

Most mothers like their children to change their clothes when they come home from school. If you do, start from the first day training them where to put their good school clothes. Have them put shoes where they can find them the next morning.

If the children know how to put their soiled school clothes in the clothes hamper, you will not have to go to their rooms and pick them up yourself.

Indoor Gardening

The Many-Faced Pilea Has a Variety of Uses

By Katherine B. Walker

You've heard the old saying "you can't tell the players without a scorecard"? Well, you'll find it hard to distinguish between some of the pileas without a little help, too, or even to determine if they are pileas at all, as some look almost identical while others bear little outward resemblance to the rest of the group.

Panamiga (P. involucreata), for example, is totally unlike Aluminum Plant (P. cadie-rei), and neither one looks anything like Artillery Plant (P. microphylla). But all the pileas listed by two of the growers on our Source Sheet are proven house plants, and each one in its own way is an attractive, worthwhile foliage plant to add to your indoor garden.

A long-time favorite of mine, the Artillery plant, has a ferny look yet is not particularly tender nor difficult to grow. Two varieties of this are available, P. serpillacea being slightly larger than P. microphylla, but both classed as dwarf plants. These plants are invaluable for edging pebble-trays, and are equally useful used as specimen plants. Artillery plants received their common name from their interesting habit of discharging pollen forcibly and visibly from the minute flowers. Before the plants have bloomed, it is well to take cuttings to establish new stock (cuttings root easily in almost any damp medium) since old plants tend to become shabby looking and even severe cutting back doesn't always improve them.

Pileas like rich, loose soil, ample moisture at the roots, extra humidity if it can be provided, and they prefer a warm, partially shaded place although they will grow in full sun. Too much sunlight, however, may bleach their tiny, soft green, succulent leaves.

Those of you who have enjoyed collecting all the available species of various genera, such as oxalis, cissus, tradescantia, etc., will surely enjoy a collection of pileas, and you can get nine or ten different ones for around $4. This will include — besides the ones already mentioned — Silver Leaf and Black Leaf Panamigas, Dwarf Aluminum Plant, Creeping Charlie, and others.

Questions and Answers
Some time ago you noted the basic differences between peat moss and sphagnum moss. I would be interested in having you write fully about both of these, and their uses for potted plants and also in the outdoor garden.

Even the briefest discussion of these two substances requires several columns of very fine print in garden encyclopedias, which is more space than I could devote to them. May I suggest you consult one of the fine reference books at your public library for complete information on these?

I don't have any trouble rooting plain green ivy, but the variegated kinds refuse to root. Can you suggest some way to treat the variegated cuttings to make them root?

First, be sure you make cuttings of half-ripened wood; neither tender growth nor fully mature growth will root satisfactorily. Cut just below a leaf, making a sharp, clean cut, then remove the lower leaf and also a portion of the tip end if the cutting is more than three inches long. Insert the cutting to half its length in damp sand, water, or whatever rooting medium you prefer. If the cuttings wilt excessively, cover with plastic film or sprinkle lightly with plain water. Pot when roots are one-half inch long.

I get lots of nice roots on begonia cuttings, but after I pot them up, they die right away. What could be the trouble?

It might be that you are not letting them root long enough, or you are letting them root too long; either one is bad and you should watch the plant carefully. Or perhaps, when potting the cuttings, you are pressing the soil down so firmly that you either break off the new roots or smother them.

Charlie Questions Farmer Garst's Manners, Tells Jokes on Nikita

BY CHARLES HOUSE
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Potpourri: When the Soviet premier visited the Roswell (Bob) Garst farm in Coon Rapids, Iowa, he appeared to be amused by Mr. Garst's amazing show of bad manners. Garst kicked at a gentle-minded reporter from the New York Times who was guilty of nothing more than doing his job; Garst threatened others, including your reporter, with a corn stalk; Garst threw silage at other reporters, and Garst spent much of the time roaring at us all. Usually his remarks were preceded by, "Now, listen you guys!" He also sent 150 reporters off on a wild goose chase.

Most of us on the scene were furious, and one reporter from the Kansas City Star suggested Garst should be nominated as the incredible displays of bad temper Mr. Khrushchev appeared "To Prince Dimitri from Tanya, 1911."

I talked with a Chinese correspondent at Coon Rapids. In the course of our chat I asked him what characteristic of the American people was most worthy of note to him. His answer: "The peculiar slant of their eyes." Incidentally, I learned that the literal translation of the name "chop suey" is "miscellaneous pieces."

The picnic dinner at the Garst farm was about the only sizeable expense not paid for either by the U. S. state department or local chambers of commerce. Cost of the Garst picnic was estimated at about $3,000—about $8 each for 375 lunches. . . .

Later the president took a cigaret and Mr. KH handed him a lighter which worked equally well. President Eisenhower studied it. The lighter was gold and was ornately decorated with beautiful gems, diamonds, sapphires and rubies. Inscribed on it was reporter to suggest that the only American he could think of who is quick and sharp enough to best Mr. KH is Bob Hope. . . .

The modesty of Madam Khrushchev was amazing. Once, quietly she told a group of us, "I am not such an important person that it is necessary to interview me." Another time, when she was asked if there was anything she wished to see in America, she said, "Anything my husband wants to see." One of the ladies there told her that she was, indeed, important enough to be interviewed. She answered: "That is your habit, not ours." In Russia, wives are seldom invited to important functions. Only two kinds of wives go to the big affairs—the wives of high ranking executives and the wives of newspapermen. . . . Madam was once a teacher of adult students in political economy. . . .

Premier Khrushchev proved himself a devotee of parables, but here are some Russian folk sayings he did not employ: "A wise combatant requests that his opponent discard his spear. . . . Not every fat goose is happy. . . . If a fox were to marry a bear its children would be both strong and wise. . . . If a man sells a pig in a bag he must expect to hear squeals from the buyer. . . ."

The collective farms or the state-owned farms in the Soviet Union have not been able to produce as much nor as well as American farms with their family-owned system. The truth is that Russian land is always overmanned. A typical collective farm in the Ukraine embraces about 1,800 acres and is worked by an average of 250 able-bodied men and women. That amounts to about one farm hand for each seven acres.

In our country, especially on the large farms of the west, it

Post-Crescent Columnist Charles House can't relax even on his 100-mile walk into autumn. is not unusual for one man to handle 75 acres or more. . . . We in America who enjoy a free press cannot understand why the Russians regard our reporters as capitalist spies, but it is apparently a national Russian characteristic to mistrust newsmen. Pravda has said, point blank, that journalism—whether capitalistic or Russian—cannot be nonpolitical. The Russian layman himself does not admire objective reporting, for he considers a news story only in the manner it affects the mind of the reader. All journalism is regarded in this manner and it is the opinion of many informed newsmen that the Russians cannot be taught to regard newspapers as anything but the voice of its chief political party. . . .

Watch Toddlers to See if They Walk Correctly, Molner Says

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.
"Dear Dr. Molner: My daughter's baby has slept on her stomach for 10 months, with her feet turned in. Will this make her walk pigeon-toed? If so, what can be done to straighten the feet?—K.M."

Frankly, it might cause her to toe in, but moderate Dr. Molner pigeon-toeing is not a matter for concern. Keep in mind two things. First, some babies just get in the habit of sleeping in one position or another, but nature does a very efficient job of not letting them do anything harmful.

Second, as in this case, this fashion of sleeping may (or may not!) cause a bit of pigeon-toeing, but nature tends to correct this after the foot begins to be used for its normal purpose—that is, walking. The toddlers, of course, as they begin exploring their first steps, will look and act clumsy, in their cute fashion. This is normal.

Continued Clumsiness The persistence of toeing-in (or other peculiarity in walking) is the clue to watch for. Does the child continue to be clumsy, or continue to trip and stumble? That is the sign that bears watching.

If there is some toeing-in, and stumbling, this very often can be corrected with appropriate shoes.

Of course, there is an occasional case in which the real reason for the turned-in toes involves some structural defect of hips, legs or feet, so do not expect a single suggestion to solve the problem if it is one of such severity.

Thus, my net suggestion is, first, don't be unduly alarmed

The Dodgers Catch Sherm Lollar at the plate in the key eighth-inning play of Friday's World Series game. Carrying the prospective tying run, Lollar is retired easily by catcher John Roseboro, who took a Wally Moon-to-Maury Willis relay. Lollar tried to score on Al Smith's double. The Dodgers won, 4-3.

Drysdale, Donovan to Hurl For Deadlocked Series Foes

Odds Favor LA After 4-3 Victory

BY ED WILKS
Los Angeles — The Los Angeles Dodgers, backed by the screen that looms in left at the coliseum, now are favored to whip Chicago's White Sox in their run for the richest payoff yet as the World Series comes to the West coast for the first time in history.

After coming from behind Friday for a 4-3 victory and a split of the first two games, played at Chicago's Comiskey park, the Dodgers are tagged at 11:10 to win the best-of-7 series.

And they're favored at 6-5 Sunday in the first of three games at the coliseum — already a sellout at 92,000-plus.

Time Off Today

That should push the winners' share of the loot a few thousand past the record $11,147.90 collected by the Giants in their 1954 sweep of Cleveland. There's $331,070 in the players' pool already after a 2-game attendance total of 95,381 at Chicago.

With time off for traveling, both clubs worked out today at Charlie Neal, Left, and "Chuek" Essegian provided the power for the Dodgers' 4-3 victory over the White Sox in Friday's World Series game. Neal blasted two homers, and Essegian hit a pinch 4-bagger.

Unimpressed Dodgers Alter Foe's Battle Cry to 'Slow, Slow Sox'

LA Has Stolen Three Bases to None for Chisox

By Charles Chamberlain
Chicago — The Los Angeles Dodgers apparently have been pumped so full with reports of Chicago White Sox speed, they are filled up to here.

It started coming out Friday after the Dodgers squared the World Series with a 4-3 victory.

Pitcher Clem Labine shouted across the Dodger dressing room:

"Go, go Sox! Hell, suddenly they are the slow, slow Sox!"

Someone added: "We've stolen three bags and they haven't any. Go, go Sox! Go, go Sox—that's all I've heard."

One Man's Slowness

They were taking advantage of one man's slowness to taint the Sox battle cry. He was catcher Sherm Lollar, out a mile at the plate in the eighth inning, when the Sox were trying another of their cliff-hanging comebacks.

They got one run in the two or three, leaving them trailing, 4-3.

On Al Smith's double, Lollar went from first to second, hesitated slightly, then headed for third. There, Sox coach

Tony Cuccinello gave his now famous wishful wave, sending the lumbering Lollar for home.

A perfect relay — Wally Moon to Maury Willis to John Roseboro — had Lollar out easily at the plate.

All this keyed the Sox defeat.

There was no squirming by Cuccinello, Manager Al Lopez' veteran first lieutenant, although he was on the hot seat afterward.

"I thought Lollar could make it but once he went past me I knew he was going to be out," said Tony. "I gambled and lost. If I had it to do over I'd stop him. But if he made it, the game would have been tied and I'd have had the winning run on third."

Lollar shouldered some of the blame:

"I hesitated at second because I thought Moon had a chance on the ball. Once the ball got by him, I started up again and when Tony waved me in I thought I was going to make it easily."

Shortstop Willis, middleman in relay that cut down Lollar, said:

"I wasn't surprised they sent Lollar for home—I was just glad; for I knew we had him by a mile. Moon made the play. He took Smith's hit off the wall on one hop and rifled it straight to him."

Two Blocked Punts Help Neenah '11' Tip Kimberly, 21-7

Rockets Score Twice in Final Period for 2nd M-E Victory

BY JIM HARP
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Kimberly — A pair of blocked punts set up two Neenah touchdowns that paced the Rockets to a 21-7 victory over Kimberly High here Friday night.

The Papermakers battled the favored Neenah squad to a 7-7 tie for three periods but Neenah pushed across two scores in the final stanza.

It was the second straight Mid-Eastern conference victory for Neenah while Kimberly now has a 1-1 mark.

Downed on 2

Early in the first period, the Neenah line broke through to block one of Darrell Jansen's punt attempts. The ball rolled back to the Papermaker 2-yard line where it was downed and Neenah took over. After a line play failed, quarterback Jack Ankerson sneaked over. "Mitch" Miller booted his first of three successful extra points.

Kimberly retaliated quickly, as quarterback Don Hearden unlimbered his passing arm. From their own 40, the Papermakers marched to the

Wilson Ankerson
Neenah 24. Figuring in the march were five completed passes. Hearden took it on a keeper to the 16 and then scored on the same play a moment later.

Faking a try for the point from placement, Hearden tossed a pass to Jansen to make the score 7-7 as the half ended.

son made the difference for the Rockets in the second half as he piled up yardage through the Papermaker line. Wilson led a ground attack that moved to the Kimberly 11-yard line as the period ended. On the first play of the fourth quarter Wilson bucked to the 5, Winn Zimmerman went to the one and Wilson crashed over. Miller added the point after.

Punt Blocked

With about three minutes left, Jansen dropped back to punt but it was blocked again and Neenah downed it on the Papermaker 13.

With Wilson carrying the mail the Rockets added the clincher in five plays. Wilson went over from the 2. Miller added the point to make it 21-7.

Neenah's defense was tough in the second half as the Papermakers were limited to only 19 yards rushing. The secondary also did a good job against Hearden's passes as the Papermaker quarterback connected on only five of 15 tries in the last half after hitting nine of 14 in the first two periods.

Green Bay — The Packers hope to (1) come up with more offense and (2) continue the defense they showed against the Bears when they battle the Lions at City stadium Sunday afternoon.

Such turns of events would go a long way toward helping the Bays score their second straight National Football league victory and, at the same time, hand the Lions their second straight defeat.

Sellout Crowd

Kickoff for the fifty-second Packer-Lion collision is scheduled for 1:06, and a sellout crowd of over 32,150 will witness the match. The weather will cooperate — no rain but cloudy and close to 60 degrees.

The game is rated a toss-up, which is odd in view of the Lions' better record of a year ago and this being a complete-change year for the Bays. The Lions won four in '59; the Packers one.

Sunday's battle marks the return of Ray McLean, the Packers' head coach in '58, to City stadium as backfield coach of the Lions. And it sends Packer backfield coach "Red" Cochran against his former for the first time.

Rote is Back

A number of "ex's" will be fighting against their former teammates but the major figure in this group will be Tobin Rote, the Lions' quarterback who set most of Green Bay's all-time aerial marks. Tobin was traded to Detroit in spring of '57 and has yet to lose to the Bays in four starts.

Kaukauna '11 Rips Two Rivers, 27-0

Sophomore Wurdinger Scores 3 Touchdowns on Wet Field

Two Rivers — Sophomore halfback Bob Wurdinger scored three touchdowns here Friday night as the Kaukauna High school football Ghosts rolled over Two Rivers, 27-0, in a Mid-Eastern conference game.

Despite rain during the first half and a heavy fog during the second, about 500 fans watched the game.

Kaukauna rolled up 16 first downs to Two Rivers' seven in the one-sided contest. It evened both clubs' records at 1-1 in the M-E.

The Ghosts talked twice in the first quarter. The first score culminated a 75-yard march in which Jim Steger rambled 48 yards around his own left end for the touchdown. A running try for the conversion failed.

Score Later

The Ghosts scored later in the period on a 46-yard march, with Wurdinger blasting through the line from the Purple Raiders' 3-yard line. Pete Bachhuber kicked the extra point for a 13-0 lead.

The Ghosts tallied again in the second quarter when Wurdinger bolted through the Two Rivers line from the 7-yard line. Bachhuber again converted for a 20-0 halftime lead. The final Kaukauna score came in the third period on a 5-yard jaunt by Wurdinger to wind up a 63-yard conversion. The Raiders' best chance for a score was on a 76-yard kickoff return by Bob Rusch, in the second quarter, to the winners' 15-yard line. But the visitors held.

Steger threw four passes and completed them all.

Charlie May Have Ulcer

There's Nothing Sickly About Neal's Swinging

BY JOE REICHLER
Los Angeles — Charlie Neal is the smallest, lightest, skinniest, and most nervous Dodger of them all. He may also be the sickest, as he claims, but there's nothing anemic about the way he swings a bat.

The Los Angeles second base star looked like the healthiest hospital case in the country Friday as he powered two pitches by Chicago's Bob Shaw out of Chicago's Comiskey park in the Dodgers' 4-3 triumph that evened the World Series at a game apiece.

"I think I have an ulcer," moaned the 156-pound, muscle-minus mauler. "My stomach has been giving me fits for a week."

The 5-foot-10 infielder pressed his fingers over the lower part of his abdomen, ever so gently, and said:

"Right here. That's where it hurts. I feel all knotted up. Especially at the beginning of a game. I'm all right when it's over. It comes and goes. That's why I think it's an ulcer."

What did the club doctor say?

"Oh, he doesn't know," said Charlie. "Nobody knows, not even Alston (Manager Walt

FVL Bids for First Victory At Marinette

The Fox Valley Lutheran High school football team bids for its first victory of the season when it invades Marinette Sunday for a 2 p. m. game with the Lourdes.

The Foxes have lost to Wisconsin Lutheran of Milwaukee, Brillion and Northwestern of Watertown. In the games against the latter two teams, FVL scored first only to be outlasted by respective 7-6 and 20-7 margins.

Ron Olm leads FVL scoring to date with two touchdowns.

Colts, Bears Play Vital Tilt Tonight

Cleveland to Test Cardinals' Bewildering Offense Sunday

By The Associated Press
The defending champion Baltimore Colts, who waited until they were threatened before they came to life in their opening game, and the challenging Chicago Bears, open the second weekend of the National Football league season tonight.

It's a game that likely will be of utmost importance in the Western division race and it is listed as a sellout.

The Colts are regarded as the team to beat in their division. Pre-season ratings listed the Bears as their strongest rivals.

Last week, Baltimore couldn't score against Detroit until more than nine minutes of the third quarter had passed. Then Johnny Unitas began hitting his receivers and the Colts exploded for three touchdowns and a 21-9 victory.

The Green Bay Packer defense put together by new coach Vince Lombardi upset the Bears, 9-6. Slippery turf also handicapped Chicago's running game, but the only Bear scores came on field goals by rookie John Arden.

Tonight, it will be up to Ed Brown and-or Zeke Bratkowski to produce a Bear scoring punch against a Colt pass defense that came up with five interceptions against Detroit.

A number of players will be appearing in new uniforms in Sunday's five games.

The Pittsburgh Steelers picked up offensive halfback Jack Call from Baltimore. The Washington Redskins sought to strengthen their defense with end Ed Meadows from Philadelphia and back Gary Glick from Pittsburgh.

Washington and Pittsburgh meet on the latter's field Sunday. The Cleveland Browns visit the Cardinals, whose bewildering offense is causing coach Paul Brown some worries. The New York Giants visit Philadelphia; Detroit is at Green Bay and Los Angeles at San Francisco.

New London Harriers Tip Appleton High

Tom Laux Breaks Own Record in 27-31 Victory

New London — Tom Laux, New London High school's star harrier, broke his own record again Friday afternoon when the Bulldogs edged Appleton, 27 to 31, in a cross country meet.

Laux led his teammates to their fourth straight win of the season and established a new record of 11 minutes and 59 seconds for the 2.3 mile course.

The Bulldogs slammed the first three places as Max Harn, second place, went the distance in 12:40 and Mike Barrington, third, in 12:49.

Appleton's John Wiley, fourth place, crossed the finish line in 12:56.

The Terrers also claimed the next three places, with Phil Nordgren, Dennis Hopfensperger and Bill Ryle fifth, sixth and seventh.

New London's Bill Barrington placed eighth and Harold Lodholz of Appleton, was ninth. Appleton's Bill Simon was tenth.

Laux, a Bulldog senior, is compiling an amazing record this year, although it is his first try in the distance running event. He set a new course record during the first meet and each meet thereafter he established new records.

New London will be host to Shawano Tuesday afternoon. The Bulldogs' return meet with AHS is scheduled in Appleton Oct. 16.

The Terrers, with a 1-1 record, meet Seymour Tuesday afternoon in Appleton.

New Sports Feature Will Start Monday

A new 5-times-a-week feature, "Improve Your Game," will start Monday in the Post-Crescent sports section.

The illustrated feature, designed to answer some of the needs of amateur sportsmen, will present a tip each day on one of 14 popular participant sports. Each sport is usually covered for two weeks at a time. The opening week's tips will be on fishing.

Irving Marsh, assistant sports editor of the New York Herald Tribune, writes the feature, and Gardner Tyrell illustrates it.

Dick Bennett Scores Three Touchdowns in 2nd Quarter

BY DICK McDANIEL

Clintonville — The Clintonville Truckers had a big second quarter here Friday night when they scored 19 points in the period to down the New London Bulldogs, 25 to 0, in Clintonville's second Mid-Eastern conference win.

It was New London's second shutout defeat.

Coach Tony Ellis' Truckers broke into pay dirt late in the first quarter when Archie Gough, a co-captain, split the center of the Bulldog defense from the 3-yard line.

In the second quarter the hosts pushed the Bulldogs back to the New London 3-

Casper, Lema Tie for Lead

Portland, Ore. — Billy Casper, Jr., carried a red-hot putter and a share of the lead into today's third round of the $20,000 Centennial Open.

The U.S. Open champion was at his best Friday as he toured the 6,604-yard Portland Golf club course in an 8-under-par 64 and tied young Tony Lema for top spot at 133.

Their lead might have been more comfortable if Bob Rosburg of Palo Alto, Calif., hadn't also come through with a 64. He moved into runner-up position at 134.

Smith Has Kind Words

Lollar's Running Sets Off Second-Guessing

BY JERRY LISKA
Los Angeles — Al Smith, the White Sox hero-who-might-have-been, had kind words for teammate Sherman Lollar, the base-running goat of the second World Series game.

"You just don't see things running those bases you do up in the grandstand where everything looks like a chess game," said Smith, whose three series' hits to date have all been doubles.

Smith's eighth-inning clout Friday precipitated the first big second-guessing boom of the now evenly divided series.

Lollar, not exactly a gazelle on the base-paths, took off from first on Smith's 2-base smash off the left field wall, hesitated near second, and then was nailed by 10 feet at the plate in what appeared a foolhardy attempt to score.

Lollar, who had been waved on by third base coach Tony Cuccinello, was just following a season-long White Sox pattern, according to Smith.

"We've scored a lot of times on that play," said Smith, 31-year-old left fielder. "When you're at home, you can gamble because you have the last outs. If Lollar scores, then I'm on third with the winning run and none out. They could have made the play on me, trying for third on the throw. In then, the score is tied and we're in the game."

"I thought he could make it, I thought he could make it," said Tony Cuccinello, a real major league veteran both as player and coach.

Paper Says Nats Plan '60 Move To Minneapolis

St. Louis — The Sporting News said Friday the Washington Senators, long plagued by low gate receipts, plan to move to Minneapolis in 1960.

In a copyrighted story, the baseball weekly said Senators' President Cal Griffith has served notice of his plan on American Association President Ed Doherty and will advise the American league realignment committee during the World Series in Chicago.

Editor J. G. Taylor Spink said the move is contingent on approval of the 4-man AL committee.

Griffith must put his proposal in the hands of the committee during October, according to major league rules.

A similar proposal by Griffith in 1958 was beaten down.

Boxers Went to Right City but Wrong State

Salem, N.H. — About 300 fans and six fighters showed up Thursday night for the first in a series of weekly amateur boxing matches.

There were 12 bouts on the card, leaving 18 fighters unaccounted for.

They went to Salem, Mass., by mistake.

The bouts were rescheduled for Oct. 19.

Floyd Vandenberg, 21, of Appleton whacked a sizzling 738 series in Sherwood's Businessmen's league Thursday night.

Honor Bowler Goes 123 Over Previous High

The best previous bowling series for Floyd Vandenberg, 612 E. South River street, who thumped a blazing 738 at Sherwood Thursday evening, was an unsensational 615.

Vandenberg, 21, has been bowling about seven seasons. Before his 267 and 268 lines Thursday, Vandenberg's best previous line in league competition was a 233. He once fired a 255 in open kiegling.

In his 267 in Businessmen's league action, Floyd had a spare, two strikes, a spare, seven strikes and got nine pins on his last ball. In the 268 he opened with a strike, spared, then swatted eight straight strikes, had an 8-pin hit and spared it. He opened his final (201) game with three straight strikes and then tapered off.

Vandenberg, who is single, works in the office of the Universal Paper company. He also bowls weekly in the Tavern league at Hahn's on Friday evenings.

"I don't know what happened Thursday," he says. "The ball just went in."

Evashovski Says He'll Resign at Expiration Of Present Contract

Iowa City, Iowa — Forest Evashovski, head football coach of the State University of Iowa, announced Friday he is resigning when his present contract expires.

Evashovski, during his tenure at Iowa, had raised the Hawkeyes to the front ranks of the Big Ten conference, was given a 10-year contract in 1953. He came to Iowa in 1952.

His intention to resign was made in a letter to Harvey Davis, acting president of the university, and to members of the Iowa board in control of athletics. He said there would be no expansion of the statement.

Chisox Really Wear White Sox in Series

Chicago — For the first time in many years, the Chicago White Sox really wore them—white sox, that is.

The team in recent years has worn black hose with a thin, light colored striping. For Thursday's first World Series game, the team took to the field in white sox with thin, black striping.

President Bill Veck explained that he finally decided to give in to the hundreds of letter writers who pleaded a more complete reform of the club under his care.

Dodger Fans Whoop It Up as Team Returns to Los Angeles

Los Angeles — Los Angeles' comeback Dodgers came home to a ripsnorting welcome from fans yelling their confidence of victory in Sunday's third world Series game.

A crowd of 4,500 screamed like Indians on the warpath as the Dodgers trooped off an airplane after a flight from Chicago Friday night.

Charlie Neal and "Chuck" Essegian, home run heroes of the Dodgers' victory in Friday's second game, got the biggest share of the roars.

The Dodger rooters didn't get a glimpse of the Chicago White Sox whose plane taxied into another section of International airport a little earlier.

But the Sox weren't without a welcome. About 200 persons, mostly relatives of players and former Chicagoans now dwelling in Dodgerland, cheered as the invaders got off the plane and hurried to their buses.

Drysedale May Spring Some New Gimmicks

Slumping Hurler Has Been Doing Some Experimenting

BY CHARLES MAHER
Los Angeles — Don Drysdale, characterized late this season by a rising temper and declining ability, may spring a couple of new gimmicks when he makes his first World Series start Sunday.

Nothing spectacular, like pitching from a bicycle or setting fire to the Chicago dugout. But still something different, something he hopes will bring him out of his strange eclipse.

The 6-foot-6 Los Angeles right-hander was a phenomenal figure at mid-season. He won the "Most Valuable Player" award in the first All-Star game and had a 15-6 record shortly after the All-Stars played for the second time. Since then, his once great competence has become almost inconspicuous, and he has lost seven of nine decisions.

"I've been trying out a couple of things in the bullpen lately," Drysdale reported. "I think they're going to help me and I'll try 'em out Sunday."

"For one thing, I've tried to shorten my stride. And I've opened up on my delivery, so I don't throw so much across my body. It leaves me freer to throw and I think it improves my control."

Control was at least one of the elements involved in Drysdale's late-season decline. He kept getting the strikeouts, and wound up with 242, the fourth highest season total in National league history. But he was having a dreadful time keeping the ball where he wanted it.

The fullback will be Howie Hamann at quarterback will be Green Bay West's Gary Just, all-FRVC defensive halfback last season and second string offensive quarterback at West to stand out Tom LaCombe. The left half will be Menasha's Fred Flom, an all-Midwest Prep back at Wayland academy and brother of former star Vike athlete Dick Flom.

fed two home run balls to Charley Neal and one to pinch-hitter Chuck Essegian, said his timing was off.

"Shaw just didn't have his usual stuff," said battery mate Lollar. "He wasn't getting his pitches down."

Base bandit Luis Aparicio, the Sox all-star shortstop, was elated over getting a double and single—his first hits of the series.

"I was a little nervous in that first game, but now I feel that it's just another game," he said.

Neal and Essegian said they didn't know what kind of a pitch they hit for homers.

Essegian lofted his homer well over 400 feet into the upper deck of left center field—only the seventh pinch homer in World Series history.

"The last time I saw Essegian hit a ball that far was at a driving range," cracked teammate Ron Fairly.

Anderegg to Play With College 'Stars

New York — Bob Anderegg, former Monroe, Wis., High school basketball star and Michigan State's co-captain last year, has agreed to play for the College All-Stars against the New York Knickerbockers Oct. 7. Anderegg is the No. 2 draft choice of the Knicks.

Pierce Appears Lost in Shuffle Of Circumstance and Strategy

BY JOE MOOSHIL
Chicago — Lost in the World Series shuffle of circumstance and strategy is Chicago White Sox pitcher Billy Pierce, who not too long ago was ranked as one of baseball's top lefthanders.

Pierce's only appearance in the series so far was in the bullpen, where he warmed up a couple of innings Friday but never was called.

Pierce has been with the White Sox longer than anyone else in point of service and was instrumental in helping lift them out of their last-place finish in 1948 to a solid contender and finally a pennant.

Twice he has won 20 games for the Sox and except for 1949 and 1954, his victory total always has been in double figures. He has not had a good year this season as witnessed by his 14-15 record.

"I'll pitch anywhere, anytime," said Pierce. "They can use me in relief or as a starter. And I'm not afraid to pitch in Los Angeles."

Pierce is aware of the fact that if things don't go well for the Sox, he might not get a call in the Coliseum because the short left field fence makes it tough on lefthanded pitchers.

"Sure I'm disappointed," said Pierce before taking off for Los Angeles Friday night. "But if I were the manager I'd do the same thing. Early Wynn and Bob Shaw have been great for us and they deserved the start."

Sugar Kings Take 3-1 Lead in Series

Havana — The Havana Sugar Kings send pitcher Walt Craddock against the Minneapolis Millers tonight with their sights set on wrapping up the little world series.

The Sugar Kings, representing the International league, edged the American association entry, 4-3, in 11 innings Friday night to take a 3-1 edge in the best-of-seven series.

Viking Frosh Gridders Open Play Monday

Just, Flom, Hamann and Franzke to Start in Backfield Here Against St. Norbert JVs

The Lawrence college freshman football team opens its 1959 season against the St. Norbert college junior varsity at 3 p. m. Monday at Whiting field.

The offensive backfield which Vike Coach Gene Davis is expected to start is made up of three Fox Cities area players and a boy who made the all-Fox River Valley conference in 1958.

Hamann at Fullback
Starting at quarterback will be Green Bay West's Gary Just, all-FRVC defensive halfback last season and second string offensive quarterback at West to stand out Tom LaCombe. The left half will be Menasha's Fred Flom, an all-Midwest Prep back at Wayland academy and brother of former star Vike athlete Dick Flom.

On defense, Menasha's Dave Robinson, first team all-Mid-Eastern conference defensive halfback in 1958 and Dick Brostrom, former Wausau High performer, will come in.

The yearling Vikes, have been drilling for about 10 days, working on both the T and single wing offensive formations. Flom will probably do the punting and just much off the kick-off, extra point and passing work.

Davis calls the club about on a par with last year's team, which dropped both its starts—against St. Norbert and Ripon—but not as good as the 1957 freshman outfit.

Oct. 20 and is host to Ripon at Lawrence will play at Beloit 2 p. m. Nov. 3.

Others on the roster:
Tom Barton, Orland Park, Ill., guard; Thomas Craven, Reno, Nev., halfback; William Falter, Elmhurst, Ill., guard; Mike Franzen, Rockford, Ill., tackle-guard; John Klinkert, Milwaukee, tackle-guard; Lloyd Moseley, Ridgewood, N. J., guard-center; Steven Myers, Grand Haven, Mich., guard; William Oran-Smith, Excelsior, Minn., left halfback; Frank Schlafer, tackle, New London; Bill Stocking, Detroit, Mich., guard; Christian Vogel, Fargo, N. D., guard-tackle; James Voss, Appleton, tackle; Michael Walter, East DePere, end; Care Wickland, Barrington, Ill., left halfback.

County Dairy Herd Record Group Moves Into New Quarters

Will be Located in Basement of Home for Aged; Annual Meeting Tuesday

Oshkosh — Having the highest percentage of cows on test of any county in the state means having enough room for its operations, and the small quarters in the county agent's office already were overcrowded for the County Dairy Herd Improvement association.

Set Up in Its New Quarters in the basement of the Winnebago County home for the aged is the Dairy Herd Improvement association which had outgrown its office in the courthouse where it had been for 19 years. All new equipment was secured as part of the move. Miss Carol Fisher is compiling butterfat production records at upper left while Richard Henkel, technician, is pipetting samples into bottles for the testing at upper right. Below Miss Blanche Hall is putting milk containing acid into a centrifuge as part of the test while at the bottom Keith Finch, head fieldman, dictates information to Mrs. Shirley Dailey, office secretary.

Red Feather Day Signals Start of Chest Fund Drive

Hundreds of Volunteers Open
Campaign for $126,400 Goal

Neenah — Monday has been designated as Red Feather day in the Twin Cities. On that day, hundreds of volunteers will begin canvassing Neenah and Menasha in an effort to raise $126,400, funds which will enable 10 Community Chest health, youth and welfare agencies to continue to serve Twin City residents during 1960.

Once again, solicitors will follow the "give where you work" plan in contacting donors. There will be no house-to-house solicitation.

Organizations which will benefit from the drive are the Neenah - Menasha Apostolate, Boys' Brigade, Boy Scouts, Children's Service society, Community Council, Family Service, Girl Scouts, Salvation Army, Visiting Nurse association and Young Women's Christian association.

Chairman's Statement
E. W. Aylward, general chairman, has told his workers theirs is an important responsibility. "As a solicitor, you must go out and sell the Neenah-Menasha Community Chest, convincing the contributor that this is the best way to give and of how important his contribution is to the Twin Cities," he declared.

Many people and organizations already have been contacted for donations. Advance gifts have been mailed, corporate gift letters sent to industries and other letters have been mailed to those who will not be contacted personally by a volunteer.

Prepare for Drive
In addition, reports on those contributors who are on the 20-minute-a-month payroll deduction plan and who are carried over from year to year are now coming in to drive headquarters.

For the past several months volunteers have been preparing for the drive. Committee chairmen have been named and in turn have met with their committees. On Monday the drive will be put in the hands of the solicitors.

Thermometers
Red Feather thermometers have been erected at the Bergstrom Paper company in Menasha and on the square in Menasha. These will tell at a glance the status of the drive throughout the month of October.

Newlyweds Plan Eastern Trip

Menasha — A wedding trip to Niagara Falls, Canada, New York city and Washington, D.C., has been planned by Miss Janice Ann Gehring, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Terrace for 35 guests. There will be a supper and dance for 250 guests tonight at Strobe's Island Haven.

Mrs. C. H. Gostas

G. Gehring, 307 Tayco street, and Charles H. Gostas. They were married at 11 a.m. this morning at St. Mary Catholic church.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Gostas, 126 Walnut street, Kimberly. The Rev. Richard Ver Bust, friend of the bridegroom, read the nuptial mass and the bride's father escorted her down the aisle.

Miss Joan Rickard, Chicago, Ill., was maid of honor. Bridal attendants were Mrs. John Gehring, Milwaukee, Mrs. Leonard Landwehr, Green Bay, cousin of the bride, Mrs. Lorian Manley, Hortonville, and Miss Dianne Mix, Little Chute, niece of the bride. Miss Suzanne Mix, also a niece, was miniature bride.

Mark A. Gehring, Milwaukee, was best man in his sister's wedding. Groomsmen were Dr. John V. Gehring, brother of the bride, Leonard Landwehr, and Lorian Manley. Guy Gehring, Milwaukee, the bride's nephew, was ring-bearer.

Following the ceremony there was a dinner at Club

Co-ed Club

Neenah — The Co-ed club will hold "a night in Las Vegas" from 8 p.m. to 11 p.m. Monday at the YWCA. The group will also elect officers for the current year.

The bride, a Menasha High school graduate, was formerly a bookkeeper at the Bank of Menasha. The bridegroom is a Kimberly High school graduate, attended Oshkosh State college, and is employed at the Kimberly-Clark corporation.

Mr. and Mrs. Gostas will reside at 1003 N. Morrison street, Appleton.

Talks Were Given to Neenah High school students this week by Miss Adelheid Staber of Bonn, Germany, a German student who fled her home in the communist sector in East Germany to study in West Germany. Miss Staber, who is working for her teaching certificate in English and geography, above is speaking to Lyle Murley's English IV class. The German girl was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Hans Hefti, 1102 E. Forest avenue, this week.

German Student Who Majors In English, Guest in Neenah

Neenah — A German student who fled from her home in the communist sector in East Germany to study in West Germany has been a guest in Neenah for the past week. She is Miss Adelheid Staber of Bonn, who is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Hans Hefti, 1102 E. Forest avenue.

Miss Staber met Mrs. Hefti when both were attending a seminar on international problems at the University of Bonn in 1954. Their friendship developed over the German major in English's desire to have an English correspondent. They have been writing ever since and Mrs. Hefti has secured correspondents for seven other German students.

Has Teaching Goal

Miss Staber was able to secure a pass from East to West Germany because she has relatives in the West sector. She left Jena where she lived with her family and was a student at the university there. In Bonn she worked for 18 months in a secretarial position and then secured a scholarship which she has held for two semesters at Bonn.

After she completes three more semesters, Miss Staber will receive her teaching certificate in English and geography. She hopes to secure a graduate scholarship in this country.

Miss Staber arrived in the United States late in August and attended a student conference in Boston, Mass. Since then she has visited New York City, Cleveland, Ohio, and Evanston, Ill.

She will leave Neenah today for Louisville, Ky., and will later travel to Washington, D.C., and will sail from New York to Germany Oct. 22.

Her aspirations to be a

Miss Staber was a guest at the Menasha Junior and Senior Parent Teachers association meeting this week and has been entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Harlow Borgen, 1997 Congress street.

She spoke at the Thursday afternoon meeting of the American Association of University Women literature group.

Miss Ruth Kaeser Tell Troth of Menasha Girl

Mrs. Harold Kaeser, 606 Third street, has announced the engagement of her daughter, Ruth, to Richard Lyneis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roman Lyneis, Fond du Lac.

Miss Kaeser graduated from St. Mary High school and St. Agnes School of Nursing at Fond du Lac. Mr. Lyneis graduated from St. Mary Springs academy at Fond du Lac and Marquette university.

She is employed at Theda Clark Memorial hospital while he is employed at the Twin City News-Record. A May 14 wedding date has been set.

Oshkosh Deanery to Hold Fall Meeting

Oshkosh — The fall meeting of the Oshkosh Deanery of the Green Bay Diocese Council of Catholic Women will be held from 1 to 3 p.m. Monday at Sacred Heart church, Oshkosh.

Women and clergy of the deanery which includes Menasha, Neenah, Omro, Oshkosh, Plainfield, Poygan, Red Granite, Wautoma and Winnebago will attend this meeting.

The theme is the "Enthronement of the Sacred Heart in the Home." A demonstration will be given with the Rev. David Bunklerman with a family taking part.

Mrs. Jarvis Miller, Neenah, deanery president will welcome the guests and conduct the meeting. The Most Rev. John B. Grellinger, dean of the Oshkosh council, will be the speaker.

County Dairy Herd Group Moves Office

Helping to test the samples and compute the records are Miss Blanche Hall, Miss Carol Fisher and Mrs. Shirley Dailley.

Some owners also take their own samples for their own private records and the DHIA staff computes the records for them. The testing program is entirely self-supporting but is connected with the dairy records office of the University of Wisconsin.

Eighteen of the herds are on an IBM machine calculation plan whereby test information is sent to the university's dairy records office for compilation. This shortens the work of the fieldmen and gives the farmer more information. Cost of the IBM program is $1 per cow above the standard herd fee.

All new equipment was secured by the DHIA office when it moved into its new headquarters. Some of the equipment is thermostatically controlled to 140 degrees temperature.

Clash in League Affair Sunday at Butte des Morts

Menasha — The St. Patrick and St. Mary grade school football teams will meet for the third time in their annual intracity Catholic Boy league clash Sunday afternoon at Butte des Morts field.

The fifth and sixth grade teams from both schools will vie at 1:15 with the varsity game scheduled to start about an hour later.

St. Mary lost to Kimberly Holy Name 21-0 Thursday afternoon at Jefferson park in its most recent outing. It was beaten by Kaukauna St. Mary 20-13 in its initial test and another game at Little Chute St. John was rained out and has been rescheduled for next Wednesday.

St. Patrick beat Kaukauna Holy Cross 6-0 in its first and only start. Two weeks ago Sunday it was rained out in an exhibition game against the Appleton South Side Athletic club and last Sunday's league game against Kaukauna St. Mary also was called off because of wet grounds.

In last year's meeting, the Shamrocks pulled out an 18-13 win on a touchdown with 10 seconds left. St. Mary had gone ahead 13-12 with just 11 minutes left. The Zephyrs claimed a 3-touchdown win in the first meeting in 1957.

St. Mary Grade Team Falls to Kimberly 21-0
Menasha — Holy Name of Kimberly bested St. Mary's graders 21-0 Thursday afternoon on Jefferson park.

The Papermakers scored once in the second quarter on a fumble which kept rolling toward the goal line and was finally recovered for a touchdown. They added single scores in the third and fourth periods. St. Mary's deepest penetration was to the Kimberly 30.

When St. Mary Entertains Pennings of De Pere at Butte des Morts field tonight its starting ends are expected to be Dick Kraus, left, and Dave Resch, both senior lettermen.

Zephyrs Renew Long Series With Squires

Meet for 30th Time Since 1929; Menashans Hold 3-Game Edge; Cop Last Four Contests

Menasha — One of the Fox Valley Catholic conference's oldest football rivalries — with a slightly new flavor — will be renewed at 8 p.m. tonight when Abbott Pennings ernoon at Jefferson part in its most recent outing. It was beaten by Kaukauna St. Mary 20-13 in its initial test and another game at Little Chute St. John was rained out and has been rescheduled for next Wednesday.

Adams Fires 597 Total in Neenah Loop

Neenah — Len Adams fired a 597 trio for the only honor total in the Goodfellowship Men's Bowling league Friday night at Muench's Recreation alleys.

The Gunderson Cleaner team leads by two games with eight wins in nine games. Gilbert's won three games.

No honor scores came out of the Kimberly-Clark Girls league session at Muench's Friday. Yellow Sox is tops by two games with an 8-1 record.

Zephyrs into the series lead, 16 victories to 13.

During a span from 1947 through 1954, the Menashans were unable to defeat their De Pere opponents. Since then it has been all St. Mary.

The Zephyrs copped the 1955 engagement 21-14 to climax their first unbeaten, untied season in history. The following season they turned in one of the top efforts of the series to completely outclass the Squires 21-6.

In 1957, the Zephyrs overcame a 7-6 first quarter deficit to ramble to a 32-7 win. They rolled up another 32 points last year to cop 32-12. The Menashans had a 32-0 lead at the close of three periods before giving up two touchdowns in the last frame with reserves in the game. Ed Lotzer led the way with three touchdowns.

St. Norbert won the first four games of the series, two each in 1929 and 1930, but St. Mary took the next four. The Zephyrs gained the upper hand the rest of the decade and St. Norbert didn't field a team from 1941 through 1943.

After the Squires resumed play in 1944, St. Mary won three straight before the former took command.

The contest will be the first in FVCC play for St. Mary while Pennings has a tie in its only league start.

Bluejays Attempt To Avenge Varsity Defeat by Indians

Menasha — Menasha's jayvees will attempt to gain some measure of revenge for Friday night's loss to Shawano when they engage the Indian jayvee team at 7:30 p.m. Monday at Shawano.

The Bluejays were beaten by New London 38-0 in their first and only start last week.

Although, in previous seasons its varsity teams haven't had much success, Shawano has done well at the jayvee level and beat both Neenah and Menasha last year in compiling a 3-1 record.

The Bluejays fell 12-7 on a fourth quarter touchdown. The Indians then stopped a Menasha drive on the 9-yard line as the game ended.

The jayvee rosters are made up of sophomores and juniors who see limited or no

Wrightstown 7, Winneconne 0.

Winneconne — The Wrightstown High school football team scored in the final quarter to edge Winneconne, 7-0, and remain tied for first place with Reedsville in the Little Nine conference race.

Fullback Bob Geyso scored on a 2-yard plunge with nine minutes left in the game to cap a 55-yard drive. John Seitz ran over the extra point.

It was the third straight shutout for the defensively-strong Tigers who have scored one touchdown in each of their conference games.

The Wolves backed Wrightstown to the wall twice during the first half of the rain-soaked game but couldn't push the ball across.

Winneconne got the Tiger 6 in the first quarter but a fake field goal try failed. And, in the second period, the Wolves got to the Tiger 10 before the visitors stiffened and took over on downs.

Wrightstown made good on its only real scoring chance of the day. The 55-yard drive was negotiated entirely on the ground, with the aid of a 15-yard penalty.

varsity action. The game will be the last away from home for the Jays, which close with three home affairs on successive Mondays.

536 Trio Tops Valley League

Cracks 209 Game; Dorothy Borneman Bows 512 Triple

Menasha — Bernie Lang clouted a 209 game and 536 series to lead both departments in the first section of the Fox Valley Women's Bowling league Thursday night at the Mid-Town alleys.

Dorothy Borneman had a 512 threesome while other honor single games included Carol Voissem 200, Jeanette Rusch 197 and Ruth Becker 192.

Lindsau's holds down first place with a 9-3 record. It leads by a game.

There were no honor totals in the Thursday night second section although Evelyn Belk was just a pin short of the 500 total.

Wettengel's Bar is the lead with an 8-4 record posting a 1-game edge over three second place clubs.

Omro Reserve Club Chalks Up 18-7 Win

Omro — Omro's jayvee football squad downed the Winneconne reserves 18-7 in a game here earlier this week.

Tom Beck ran 57 yards for the Foxes' first touchdown in the initial period and he streaked 30 yards to score in the fourth. Dale Edminister tallied on a 62 yard jaunt in the final frame.

Winneconne had held a 7-6 lead from halftime to the fourth period on Art Becker's 35-yard pass interception and Steve Vandenberg's extra point in the second frame.

Trap Shooting

Neenah — The Neenah-Menasha Gun club again will sponsor trap shooting from 9 a.m. until about 4 or 5 p.m. Sunday at Stroeb's island. The club plans to continue its Sunday shoots while the weather is favorable.

Shawano Aerial Beats Jays 18-13 on Last Play of Game

Menasha Battles From 12-0 Deficit; Scores on 2 Passes

BY GEORGE MANCOSKY Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Menasha — Shawano, appearing to be going down to defeat, uncorked a pretty 30-yard aerial on the last play of the ball game, to salvage an 18-13 win over Menasha in their Mid-Eastern conference game here Friday night.

Just five seconds remained on the clock when Quarterback Bill Krenger tossed a pass straight down the middle to end Guy Booth, waiting by himself in or just a yard or so away from the end zone. That was the ball game and there wasn't even time for the Stumpf kick off.

The win was Shawano's first in two Mid-Eastern conference starts while Menasha is still looking for its first league triumph in as many outings.

For the Indians it marked the first time since 1954 that they beat a M-E team other than New London or Two Rivers and it was their first victory over the Jays since 1954.

Indians Score Twice
The Bluejays spotted the invaders two touchdowns in the first quarter and then unleashed a potent air attack to score on 50 and 64-yard pass plays from Jim Stenson to Bob Stumpf and Dave Ristau, respectively, to move in front.

They were apparently coasting home with that 1-point margin when they lost the ball on a fumble on the Indian 37 with something like two minutes left. The victors gained a yard, threw an incomplete pass and then moved to the Jay 30 on a pass play from Krenger to Roger Dodge. There were just five seconds left, when on the next play, Krenger heaved the clincher to Booth.

One First Down

Although they had two touchdowns in the third quarter, the Jays didn't get an honest-to-goodness first down until the fourth period. They only had one in the first half and that came by penalty.

At halftime, the hosts had a minus 14 yards rushing and they wound up with a plus 38. Four times they lost 10 or more yards at a clip. Shawano gained 68 yards on the Shawano defenders. Bill Gerhard's kick made the score 12-7.

Jays Halt Drive

On the next series, Menasha halted a Shawano drive on the Jay 33. It got three yards in two plays when Stenson, this time getting good protection, pitched to Ristau for a 64-yard TD play. The speedy end had a step jump on his defender and it was all he needed. Gerhard's kick failed.

The rejuvenated Jays, starting on their 37 in the third quarter, moved to the Shawano 25 early in the fourth where on a fourth down play they lost to the 38. The visitors, making two first downs along the way, came back to the Jay 14 before surrendering the ball.

Lose Ball on Fumble
Menasha then looked as though it would run out the clock for at the 4-minute mark it had gotten to the 31 and through another first down and a 15-yard penalty on Shawano it was soon on the Indian 37.

But on a second down fumble the ball was lost and four plays later the Indians were 63 yards further down the field and six points and a victory richer.

243 Single Gives Him Honors Sweep; Heller Clubs 629

Menasha — "Blondie" Pawlowski jolted a 635 series, including games of 243 and 233, to spear honors in the Menasha Men's Bowling league Friday night at Mid-Town.

The 243 singleton was the night's high. Pawlowski bowls for the fifth place Trader's team.

Other honor scores included Ed Meyer 615, Bob Hanson 604, Ben Stepanski 578, Bob Sharp 571, Rog Peterson 562, Bill Buksyk 553, Bob Skally 552 and Hal Ganzel 551.

Club Terrace holds first place with its 9-3 record with a 1-game edge over the field. There were no honor scores in the Twin City Women's league Friday night. Audrey Lewis missed a 500 set by four pins.

The Mid-Town team still leads with an 8-4 record, topping two challengers by a game. Four teams tied for last place are just three games out.

Frank Heller fired a 629 series and Nate Miller had a 236 game in the Wednesday night

Mutual Trust Basis for Disarmament

Soviet Record in Middle East Makes
Controls Necessary

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington — Many thousands of words now have been poured forth by Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev as an assurance to the world of his peaceful intentions. But who will believe them? What has he done to make people trust him?

The French Minister of Foreign Affairs, Maurice Couve de Murville, has just put his finger on the "key word," and that's "trust." In a speech in New York before the general assembly of the United Nations, the French statesman has exposed the trickery and duplicity of the disarmament proposal made by Mr. Khrushchev before the United Nations. The French foreign minister says: "The Soviet Union, as I understand it, accepts the idea of controls on disarmament, but envisages that there will not be set up, or at least will not actually function, until after the agreed measures of disarmament have already been implemented."

"We believe on the contrary that one cannot disassociate the actual process of disarmament from the setting up of controls. The latter guarantees the former and consequently conditions it. Lacking real controls, the trust would be lacking."

American Withdrawal
"I purposely use the word trust, for it is the key word. The problem of disarmament has certain technical aspects and those are important, but basically it is a political problem."

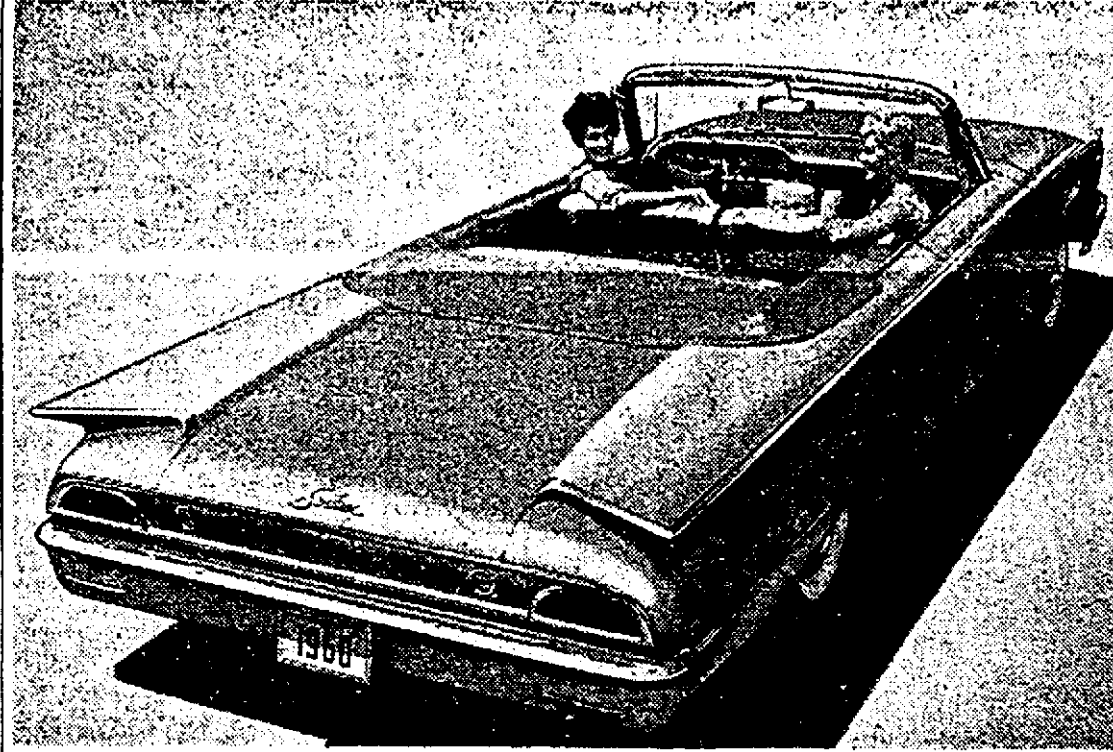

What all this means is that the Soviet government wants a stage-by-stage formula, including a withdrawal of American forces from Europe, a transfer of all atomic weapons from Europe and perhaps their destruction before any control measures are set up to determine whether the Soviet government is complying with the corresponding pledges it will have been asked to make under the disarmament agreement.

The truth is nobody knows what the Soviets are really planning because the world has seen them break pledge after pledge.

Soviet Interference
The Soviets openly admitted that they furnished arms and ammunition that were used by the north Korean armies to fight the United Nations forces in 1950.

The Soviet government has instigated revolts in southeast Asia and in the Middle East and has infiltrated many countries around the world. Khrushchev last Sunday said "The principle of noninterference by countries in each other's domestic affairs should be strictly adhered to."

As far back as 1933, however, the Soviet Union made

The 1960 Ford Has a styling theme originated for later use but brought out this year, executives say. The windshield has more space, but does not include the swept-back look that created the uncomfortable "dog leg" hampering getting into the car.

that very promise when the United States recognized the Moscow government. Since that time the communists have repeatedly violated the principle of noninterference in the internal affairs of many countries.

The question now is whether the Soviet chief can expect by a few speeches to erase the past altogether and to receive trust where no basis for it has ever been established. The Soviet premier uses pious words, but his deeds belie them. He said last Sunday: "The constitution of our country is in reality a most democratic one. It insures universal, equal and direct elections to legislative bodies with secret ballot. It insures the right to work, to study and to rest."

State Capitalism
Actually only one political party is allowed, and candidates are handpicked in Moscow. The constitution itself is just a smokescreen of high-sounding words to hide the system of compulsion and slavery that is imposed on the people of the Soviet Union. Citizens either do what the government tells them to do, or they go to jail or into exile.

Mr. Khrushchev describes the Soviet system as "socialism" and calls America's "capitalism." In reality, the Soviets have a system of "state capitalism" as opposed to American "private capitalism." The Russian government confiscates the income produced by the workers and uses the capital as it pleases.

Mr. Khrushchev and his henchmen call everything in the Soviet world "democratic," even when they "purge" dissenters or send them to concentration camps.

The Soviet premier used the American television and radio and press facilities to continue the fraudulent use of words and phrases for which the communists have long been notorious. Mutual trust cannot be built on such a basis. (Copyright, 1959)

Ford Styling Shows Change

Management Junks
Original Designs
For 1960 Models

The 1960 Ford represents a styling theme created for later use but brought forward because of the enthusiasm of company management when they first saw the car.

J. O. Wright, Ford Motor company vice president and

Ford division general manager, said, "After the car originally planned for 1960 was well under way, the advanced styling office showed us some designs even farther advanced than our planned model."

"Quicksilver Won"
"One of these was called 'Quicksilver' he said. "It captured everyone's imagination immediately. "When the engineers pointed out that a new car also would enable them to design additional features into the vehicle, company management gave the go-ahead."

New, swept-back windshield pillars have eliminated the troublesome "dog-leg" found in cars with the full-wrap windshield.

Yet, the new model has 17 per cent more windshield area than last year and has a windshield wiper pattern one-third greater than in 1959.

Adding to convenience are such features as a trunk opening 27 inches from the ground, a foot-operated parking brake with the release knob located on the instrument panel and 2-stage door checks.

The line includes 15 models with six different roof lines. At the low end of the line is the Fairlane series, including 2- and 4-door sedan and a third seat in position, there-lane 500 series are two models, a 2- and 4-door sedan. The popular Galaxie series, with its Thunderbird-styled roof, includes a 2- and 4-door sedan, plus a 4-door hardtop called the Town Victoria.

The Starliner, a new 2-door hardtop, is one of two special models. The Starliner features a "fast-back" roof that sweeps back to blend with the rear deck. The other special model is the Sunliner, a soft-top convertible.

5 Station Wagons
The load space in the five station wagons is nearly a foot longer than last year, and the tail gate opens flush with the floor. With the front-facing third seat in position, there-still is stowage room ahead of the closed tail gate. The tail and lift gates can be opened with one hand.

All standard Ford engines—both six and V-8—are designed to operate on regular grade gasoline. Ford offers four short-stroke engines. The full-flow oil filter, standard equipment on all engines, permits Ford to recommend an oil change every 4,000 miles.

The engines include the economical 145 horsepower millage-maker six; the 185 horsepower, 292 cu. in. V-8; the 235 horsepower, 352 cu. in. V-8 with 2-barrel carburetor, and the 30 horsepower, 352 cu. in. power option V-8 with 4-barrel carburetor.

The 2-speed Fordomatic is available with any Ford engine. The dual-range cruiseomatic is available with V-8 engines. An extended life aluminum muffler utilizes aluminum-coated walls and heads, a double-thick inner casing and asbestos insulation to slow the condensation rate, reduce corrosion and lengthen muffler life. Mufflers are located behind the rear wheels on the 1960 Fords. For longer battery life, Ford has a standard battery with 66 plates, instead of the usual 54.
